ARMY MEN MAKE PERFECT FLIGHT TO HONOLULU

PLANE CROSSES NOVA SCOTIA IN BETTER TIME THAN LINDBERGH MADE

America With Four Passengers, Takes Off From New York for Paris Despite Storm Warnings.

GOES THROUGH RAIN IN EARLY STAGE

Plane Makes Quick Get-Away When Rope That Held It in Leash Is Slashed.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 29.—Commander Richard E. Byrd wirelessed the following message to the Trans-oceanic Co. at 5:12 p. m. Eastern daylight time today: "Crew in good condition. Head winds are bothering us. Cape Race is the last station we will raise on this coast. Regards to all the hangar crew. Byrd."

Byrd was last previously reported at 2:55 p. m. Eastern daylight time off the island of St. Pierre, Newfoundland. Cape Race, the southeastern tip of Newfoundland, would be in an almost straight line east from the St. Pierre location and nearly all of this part of the flight over water, in all probability out of sight of shore observers even if land was in view from the America.

The St. Pierre report did not give Byrd's position exactly, but indicated that when reported there he had between 100 and 200 miles to go to Cape Race. Cape Race is approximately 1,600 miles out of New York. Lindbergh had been over 100 miles in hours and 20 minutes. When Byrd's bulletin announcing his intent to make Cape Race the last station picked up, he was received he had been in at 11 hours and 45 minutes.

ST. PIERRE, N. F., June 29.—Weather conditions off this coast, which were improving early this afternoon, turned bad again late in the day, and mist driving on shore when the wind howled to the northeast. Visibility was poor.

The St. Pierre report said similar conditions, with no sign of the weather report.

WISCONSIN BEER BILL PASSED BY LEGISLATURE

Measure Legalizing 2.75 Per Cent Beer Sent to Governor for Signature.

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., June 29.—The Wisconsin Senate today passed the beer bill by a vote of 17 to 14. The bill legalizes manufacture and sale of 2.75 per cent beer as far as State prohibition enforcement laws are concerned. It now goes to Gov. Zimmerman.

LAVAL, Quebec, June 29.—Commander Richard E. Byrd was approaching St. Pierre, the Newfoundland coast, according to cross-beam established by Canadian Government wireless stations.

LOUISIANA, June 29.—The American left the coast of Nova Scotia at 1:30 p. m. Eastern daylight time (11:30 a. m. St. Louis time) and headed out to the Newfoundland coast.

Commander Byrd flew directly over the town at a comparatively low altitude. There was no fog off this section of the coast.

HALIFAX, N. S., June 29 (By the Canadian Press).—Commander Byrd covered the length of Nova Scotia today in three hours and 20 minutes, bettering Col. Charles Lindbergh's time of a month earlier by one hour and five minutes. The America arrived off the coast of Nova Scotia at 10 a. m. Eastern daylight time, and left the northern tip of the province at 1:30. Commander Byrd's time in the Columbian's time at 1:30, Commander Byrd's time at 1:30, was much slower than that of either the "spirit of St. Louis" or the "America."

Improving weather conditions favored the flyers as they headed toward Newfoundland in brilliant sunshine and with no fog in sight. They flew very low over Louisburg, apparently making certain of their point of departure over the Gulf of St. Lawrence to Newfoundland.

Commander Byrd flew over Redoubt, nine miles north of Halifax, at 1:35 Eastern daylight time (10:35 St. Louis time). He was flying away from the fog blanket along the coast.

The early hours of the flight were made through weather conditions which were never favorable and which varied from mist

Radio Messages From Plane of Commander Byrd

NEW YORK, June 29
THE following radio messages from Commander Byrd were picked up at various points along the Atlantic Coast today:

At 6 a. m. Eastern daylight time: "Radio traffic automatic signals have gone bad; everything else fine. BYRD."

At 7:22 a. m.: "Misty and rainy, all well."

At 9:09 a. m.: "Please ask stations to stand by. I am going to pump gas. BYRD."

At 9:29 a. m.: "Twenty miles west of Yarmouth, N. S."

At 9:30 a. m.: "Getting chilly flying at altitude of over one half mile. All my shipmates doing their jobs like men. (Signed) BYRD."

Shortly after noon: We wire our best wishes to Maitland and his crew. We are keeping a sharp lookout for Nungesser. Wind does not help us at surface. Good at half mile. We think we are getting some scientific data."

At 1:30 p. m. the America was at Scatari, flying at a height of about 5000 feet. Commander Richard E. Byrd informed the America Trans-oceanic Co. by wireless. Scatari is a small island northeast of Nova Scotia. It was estimated that the America was averaging 100 miles an hour.

At 5:12 p. m.: "Crew in good condition. Head winds are bothering us. Cape Race is the last station we will raise on this coast. Regards to all the hangar crew. Byrd."

BOSTON, June 29.—Gov. Alvan T. Fuller today granted a 30-day respite to Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, whose conviction for murder has attracted international attention. Their execution had been set for the week of July 10.

The governor also granted a 30-day respite to Celestino Madeiros, sentenced to death for another murder, the last of whose respite would have expired July 10. Madeiros has asserted that he was a member of a gang which committed the murders of which Sacco and Vanzetti were convicted and that they were not involved.

Statement by Governor.

Gov. Fuller announced his action in the following statement:

"I have, with the approval of the Council, respite the execution of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti to and including Aug. 10, 1927, for the reason that the task of reviewing the evidence and record (approximately seven thousand pages) and interviewing witnesses (nearly 200) cannot well be completed by July 10; and in order that Celestino Madeiros may be available in the investigation of the cases of Sacco and Vanzetti, I also, with the Council's approval, respite the execution of the said Celestino Madeiros to and including Wednesday, Aug. 10, 1927."

Sacco and Vanzetti were convicted of the murder of Frederick A. Parmenter, paymaster of the South Boston shoe factory, and his son, Alexander Berardelli, in a holdup in front of the factory, April 15, 1920. Lengthy proceedings followed in an effort to obtain a new trial.

The Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee was organized and raised several hundred thousand dollars for the defense of the two men. Its appeals were sent all over the world. The committee's contention was that Sacco and Vanzetti were convicted, not on the evidence, but because they had admitted that they were radicals.

Many Radical Demonstrations.

Radicals in many countries in Europe and South America made numerous violent demonstrations in their behalf, including the explosion of bombs at some of the American embassies. After Judge Webster Thayer of the Superior Court, who presided at the trial, had denied motions for a new trial based on a long list of exceptions, the case went to the Massachusetts Supreme Court.

On April 5 last the Supreme Court upheld the trial judge's refusal to accept or reject the compromise proposal, a continuously competitive scale, which in event of change in West Virginia, or Kentucky fields, automatically would change in Ohio. The operators contend the 1917 scale will place Ohio miners on a fair competitive basis, and at the same time will provide a means of employment for many idle miners and will furnish an adequate fuel supply for the State.

OHIO MINE OWNERS VOTE TO REOPEN PITS JULY 15

November, 1917, Scale of $5 a day; Force to Be Either Union or Non-union.

COLUMBUS, O., June 29.—Ohio's coal miners closed since April 1, because of wage differences, will reopen July 15, either on a union or non-union basis with the November, 1917, scale of $5 per day in effect. It was unanimously agreed by the Ohio Mine Operators' Association in session here today.

Under provisions of the ultimate to be served on union officers, they will be allowed until July 15 to accept or reject the compromise proposal, a continuously competitive scale, which in event of change in West Virginia, or Kentucky fields, automatically would change in Ohio. The operators contend the 1917 scale will place Ohio miners on a fair competitive basis, and at the same time will provide a means of employment for many idle miners and will furnish an adequate fuel supply for the State.

Executive Says Action Is Taken Because More Time Is Required to Review Record and Evidence

Six Get In Under Lowering Skies After Delayed Start From Schenectady.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 29.—Commander Richard E. Byrd and his three companions on the America will be within easy radio reach of at least 17 steamers when they head out from Newfoundland late today across the Atlantic.

A chart prepared by Herbert Susmann, a navigating officer attached to the America Trans-Oceanic Company, sponsors of the flight, shows that these vessels are close to the course mapped out by Commander Byrd.

LIEUT. NOVILLE WRITES OF LIFE ON THE "AMERICA" AND PLANE'S ROUTE

Flyers Confident of Reaching Paris With Exact Data Which Will Clear Safe, Swift Air Path to Europe

Long-Awaited Sailing Orders Come Unexpectedly After Many Delays—Aviators Prepared to Relieve Each Other.

By LIEUT. GEORGE NOVILLE, Second in Command of Monoplane America.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, L. I., June 29.—We have our sailing orders. We are ready to go. Within two hours now our big monoplane America will start down the runway and take the air for Europe.

Notice of the flight came as a great surprise. We had not expected to go for at least 24 hours. But a hurried telephone call from Commander Byrd just a few minutes ago gave the orders. Fortunately I wrote this little article last Sunday morning, when it seemed we were certain to get away, and so now all I have to do is just to change the beginning a little, for all I can do now is express my great happiness at being at last ready to start.

All of us expect a really pleasant trip to Paris, although each of us will be busy with his assigned tasks. Commander Byrd will lay the course, give directions and make the observations which constitute a large share of the purpose of our journey. But when all is going well he will pass through the tunnel leading from the navigator's cabin and take a hand at the controls. Although Bert will do most of the piloting, each of us will take a relief turn. The ship is equipped with dual controls so that whenever sits beside Acosta and Balchen, who proved his merit on Commander Byrd's North Pole expedition can take turns at any position.

Prepared to Repair Engines. More times, ordinarily, will be occupied with the radio, the motion picture machine or perhaps with the engine, although we have every confidence that they will perform perfectly. If the center motor goes wrong, it will be our duty to make repairs without leaving the cockpit, but if one of the outboard engines should fail, it will then become necessary to climb out on the "catwalk," an 11-inch beam which helps support the two side motors.

But that is much simpler than it appears to those who have seen the plane or its photograph. It seems a dangerous position in mid-air, but it really is not.

At the beginning of the trip, there will be 25 five-gallon cans of gasoline which must be purchased with a hand pump as the tank supply is consumed by the heavy load. As each can is emptied it will be tossed overboard, so that we shall leave a trail from Roosevelt Field to Boston. Look out below! Expect to Eat and Get Some Sleep.

We shall have ample food—sandwiches and coffee besides our emergency rations—and we expect to eat our meals regularly. Also each of us will be able to snatch a little sleep in turn. So, it won't be a bad trip at all.

Of course, we are confident of success, although as all air men, we are fatalists. In my pockets are various "lucky pieces" sent me by people all over the country. One is said to be a piece of the original American flag.

Commander Byrd has provided for every possible emergency. Our radio will keep us in constant touch with ship or shore, and it will be repaired automatically, even when it is untouched by a human hand. We have two rubber life rafts with a tube of compressed air to blow them up; also life jackets which will keep us afloat should we be unable to use the rafts.

Not Carrying Parachutes. If we are forced down at sea we shall not be able to make it out through the open air at the top of the great wing. If we must come down to the sea, we shall have plenty of time to make preparations for a get-away, for even in the unimaginable emergency of all engines going dead, we shall be able to glide for quite a while. And with just one engine operating, we should be able to maintain ourselves in the air for some time even with a heavy load. For this reason we decided not to take parachutes although we had originally planned to have them.

So you see, our transatlantic journey is really not a very hazardous undertaking. In fact, one of our objects is to show the safety of transoceanic air travel. And so the plane while traveling," said Maitland.

Then first congratulations over, he demanded: "How about cigs?"

Hegenberger declared "sure we have a lot of mean weather on the trip. Indeed, we had our troubles, but we feel great satisfaction in having made the dash."

Thousands Cheer Airmen.

After a short session at the reviewing stand, the flyers were taken to the home of Maj. Henry D. Miller, commandant of Wheeler Field, to permit them to bathe and refresh themselves.

The military guard and the scores of police had difficulty in clearing a path for the automobile carrying the flight heroes. Police lines were unable to hold back the cheering, gesticulating thousands who witnessed the end of the flight.

Mounted police circled the plane, protecting it from the crowd that swept toward it. The flyers were presented to Gov. Wallace R. Farlington, Rear Admiral John D. McDonald and other dignitaries who loaded them with beautiful Hawaiian flowers and Leis, the native art of giving.

As Maitland entered the automobile he rubbed his hands across his eyes that were slightly bloodshot. Hegenberger's eyes also looked tired and worn. Both appeared stiff from sitting long hours in their plane.

Auto Forces Way Through Crowd.

Three or four thousand enthusiasts followed the flyers' automobile to Major Miller's home, packing the route so densely that soldiers literally had to force a way through the packed humanity.

The welcoming squadron of airplanes which went out with the dawn to find Maitland and Hegenberger and escort them to Wheeler Field, failed to see the big monoplane, which slipped in by the back way, stunning the large crowd with its sudden appearance after many civilians virtually had given up hope of its safe arrival.

The long night of waiting, the rain and murkiness which blotted out the sky had discouraged the waiting thousands until the sun broke through just before the flight's end.

The next report from the flyers came from the steamship President Pierce, 1100 miles from California, which reported hearing their radio asking for a bearing to be sent to establish location.

At 3 a. m. the plane radioed the steamer 700 miles off Honolulu.

The storm at 4 a. m. was increasing in intensity and it was impossible to see more than 100 feet. Searchlights vainly attempted to pierce the gloom, their rays producing artificial rainbows.

The rain eased within a few minutes, but the field was heavily overhung with clouds. The 12 planes for the escort lined up under orders to take off at 4:45 a. m.

The planes began warming up just as day began to break over the field. The visibility rapidly improved, and the mountains to the west of the field became visible.

Clouds Lift at 5 a. m.

The Wheeler Field squadron, joined by planes from Roosevelt Field, took off at 4:45 a. m. (7:15 a. m. Pacific Standard time) and circled the Diamond Head-Koko Head district, bold promontories jutting eastward toward the mainland, where the flyers were expected to appear soon. They saw no trace of the trans-Pacific aviators and continued their patrol of the air.

Otto J. Noville, father of Lieut. Noville, came to the America's hangar early this morning, flung his arms around his son, kissed him and said: "Well, son, you're off on this time."

"Yes, father," said Noville, "I think we'll get off."

The three young children of Theodore Roosevelt were on hand with their parents and cheered as "Uncle" George "Dick," as they call Byrd, shot down the runway on his great adventure.

Diamond Head loomed stern and silent in the morning mist. It was Acosta was at the controls on the take-off and Byrd was in the navigator's cabin with Noville and Balchen.

Weather Conditions.

Commander Byrd's decision to start this morning was reached after belated reports from ships at sea told of a general improvement in weather conditions over the Atlantic. There appear to be no general areas of bad weather, although there are local conditions of unfavorable weather, Dr. James A. Kimball, meteorologist at the Weather Bureau reported.

BYRD TAKES OFF AT DAWN DESPITE STORM PREDICTIONS

By the Associated Press.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, L. I., June 29.—Commander Richard E. Byrd and his three-man crew took off on their long delayed scientific air expedition to France in the monoplane America at dawn today.

The great three-motored Fokker took the air at 5:24 o'clock Eastern daylight time (3:24 St. Louis time), just 48 seconds after being released from the top of the runway, where it had been tied for the last six days while unfavorable weather forbade a flight.

The Captain of the Cunard liner Mauretania, in a wireless message to the American Transoceanic Co., said radio signals from Commander Byrd were coming in strong at 2:13 o'clock this afternoon. The Mauretania was off New Foundland. "America" signals strong to us now, but unable to get any response, 2 p. m., New York standard time. Is she taking our track?" was the message.

"Appreciate your message," re-piled Grover Whalen, vice president of the company. "America" taking course slightly flatter than great circle route from St. Johns, New Foundland, to Brayhead, Ireland. Your track approximately 300 miles south."

The America's position at 1:30 p. m. was between Cape Breton and New Foundland, about 880 miles from New York, according to a wireless message received here from Commander Byrd. Byrd reported the plane was flying over the entrance to the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

The storms that have prevented a flight during the more than a month and half that the Byrd plane has been waiting at the field seemed last night to be as great an obstacle as ever. But in the early hours of the morning Commander Byrd suddenly announced that despite the weather man's report he had decided to leave. Fog, showers and low clouds were predicted for part of his route.

The flight ended today exemplifying the advance which aviation had taken. Whereas the Navy had attempted to cross the Pacific from San Francisco Bay to Hawaii, one plane failed to rise, another fell into the sea 300 miles off shore, and the third, containing the late Commander John Rodgers and three other men, came down 200 feet short of their destination.

For nine days they drifted with their seaplane and were picked up when the fog had been almost abandoned.

BERLIN, June 29.—A stabilizer device by which it is claimed number of airplane accidents be greatly reduced is now being tested at the Nuremberg and erzburg aerodromes.

The device consists of a number "stabilization planes," which are not in use are kept parallel the wing. In case of danger a motor turns whereby these planes are brought into position due to the wing. When it is aimed the airplane will immediately resume its normal horizontal position. The device was constructed by Hans Hocke, an Austrian professor.

BORER OVERCOME BY HEAT
Removed to Hospital.

The first case of sunstroke of the summer was reported this afternoon.

Marshall Williams of 2615 Scott Avenue, Negro laborer for the United Railways, working at Eighth and Olive streets, was taken to City Hospital No. 2, suffering from sunstroke. His condition is serious.

He was piloting the plane." The pilot's father, relieved of the tension of all night vigil at Mrs. Matland at their home, smiled broadly and said: "I knew he'd do it."

The parents were present at the Oakland municipal airport when the army Fokker took off for the Pacific at 7:00 a. m. yesterday.

Byrd Sends Wireless Greetings From Plane in Flight.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 29.—Commander Richard E. Byrd today sent wireless greetings from the America in flight, to eight individuals in America. The messages were addressed to R. Daniel, New York newspaper man; John Oliver LaGorce of the National Geographic Society, Washington; Ray Byrd of Richmond, Va., and Mrs. Byrd; Edsel Ford of Detroit; Raymond Fosdick of New York; John D. Rockefeller and Sarah Bowman of the Geographic Society of New York City.

Byrd Orders "GAG" Ready at Paris: May Fly Back Home.

PARIS, June 29.—Instructions from Commander Byrd have been received by the air union chief of the French commercial airline to have 4,000 liters (about 960 gallons) of gasoline waiting for him at Le Bourget, leading to the belief here that he intends to return to the United States by air.

Mrs. Hegenberger Exclaims: "Isn't That Wonderful?"

BOSTON, June 29.—Mrs. Louise Hegenberger received the first news of the landing of her husband in Hawaii over the radio at her mother's home on Castle Island. Tears welled from her eyes as she hugged her two children, Albert 7 and Bobby, 3, and exclaimed: "Oh! Isn't how happy they must be."

DEATH PENALTY TO BE ASKED FOR BIRGER GANGSTERS

Choosing of Jury to Try Rado Millich and Ural Gowan for Jones' Murder Begun at Marion, Ill.

SELF-DEFENSE IS PLEA OF FORMER

Charges Against Clarence Rone, Who Has Turned State's Evidence, Will Be Dismissed.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MARION, Ill., June 29.—Selection of jurors for the trial of two Birger gangsters for the murder of one of their associates, "Casey" Jones, began here today, before Circuit Judge Hartwell. The State has announced it will seek the death penalty. The trial is the first criminal action growing out of the recent Southern Illinois gang war in which 16 persons were killed.

The defendants are Rado Millich, brought here from the Illinois penitentiary at Chester, where he is serving a term for robbery, and Ural Gowan. Charges against Clarence Rone, young member of the gang, were dismissed as State's Attorney Boswell plans to use him as the State's chief witness.

Other important State witnesses will be Danny Brown and Ray Hyland, Birger gangsters. Brown is serving an indeterminate term of from 10 years to life at Chester for highway robbery, and Hyland is in Franklin County jail awaiting trial with the gang leader, Charley Birger, and his first lieutenant, "Art" Newman, for the murder of Mayor Joe Adams of West City. Birger's wife has been summoned as a State witness but the nature of her testimony has not been disclosed.

Millich to Plead Self-Defense.

The State will attempt to show that Millich shot Jones to death with a machine gun last October after they quarreled as to which of them was in charge of "Shady" Rest, the Birger gang's fortified headquarters, since destroyed by fire. Rone and Gowan are alleged to have assisted Millich.

Millich is expected to offer testimony that he fired the shots which killed Jones after the latter had fired a machine gun in his direction. Counsel for Gowan has not outlined his defense.

Yesterday another member of the gang, Guy Roberts of West Franklin, was convicted of highway robbery in Judge Hartwell's Court and was sentenced to an indeterminate term of 10 years to life imprisonment in Chester Penitentiary. He was the fifth member of the outfit convicted here of robbery charges since Jan. 1.

Open Verdict as to Mrs. Price.

An open verdict was returned last night in the inquest into the death of Mrs. Lory Price, who is alleged to have been murdered by Birger gangsters after she and her husband were abducted from their home. Mrs. Price's body was found recently in an abandoned mine shaft near here. The body of her husband, a State highway patrolman, was found last February in Washington County.

Birger and nine of his associates are under indictment on this count for the murders. He and four other members of his gang are also under indictment in Washington County for the murder of Price. The two indictments are the result of a disagreement between authorities of the two counties as to which has jurisdiction over the Price murder cases.

After the inquest verdict was returned it was charged that Franklin County authorities refused to witness for the inquest.

Tubercular Convict Paroled.

By the Associated Press.
JEFFERSON CITY, June 28.—John R. Phillips, Jackson County convict in the Missouri Penitentiary, and veteran of the World War, today obtained from Gov. Baker, a sick parole, effective July 1. Phillips is suffering from chronic tuberculosis, a result of his war service. He was sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment on first degree robbery in Kansas City, Feb. 19, 1926. Phillips will go to the United States Veterans' Bureau, at Fort Lyons, Colo.

STEPFATHER GETS $3,750,000 UNDER J. T. WALKER WILL WED TWICE IN DAY

Dr. Malvern B. Clopton
Chief Heir to $4,898,416
Estate Left by Youth
Killed in Plane Crash.

A legacy of approximately $2,750,000 was bequeathed to Dr. Malvern B. Clopton, 5391 Waterman avenue, in the will of his stepson, James Theodore Walker, filed here yesterday. Young Walker died in an airplane crash at Pottsville, Pa., last Friday.

Bequests of $50,000 to Princeton University where Walker was graduated June 21 and $40,000 to eight St. Louis charities and $1,057,000 to relatives other than Dr. Clopton are provided by the will. An inventory of the estate taken March 20 shows Walker came of age appraised it at $4,898,416. He assumed control of the fortune and made his will June 11.

Carried Out Mother's Wish.

Dr. Clopton's inheritance of the bulk of the estate is believed to have been in line with what Walker's mother, Mrs. Lily Lambert Walker, had planned for her son to do in the event he died without descendants and before Dr. Clopton. When she died in 1911, she left a third of the fortune to Dr. Clopton and two-thirds to her son, "Teddy." The bequest to Dr. Clopton was opposed on the ground that Mrs. Clopton's fortune was in trust from her mother and she had no right to dispose of it by will. Dr. Clopton did not contest the friendly suit which settled the point, announcing his entire willingness to allow his stepson to have all the money.

List of Bequests.

The will was dated June 11. It was filed by former Judge Daniel G. Taylor, who also drew it. The specific bequests are as follows:

The five uncles, G. Herbert Walker, David D. Walker, Albert Bond Lambert, Gerard Lambert and J. D. Wooster Lambert, and to an aunt, Mrs. Kate Mudd Walker, $100,000 each.

To be divided among descendants of the late uncles, Marion L. J. Lambert and Jordan Lambert.

To a cousin, Martha Pittman, $250,000.

To the psychology department of Princeton University, $50,000.

Five thousand dollars each to these eight local charities: Father Dunn's Newsboys' Home, Msgr. Timothy Dempsey's works, Missouri Association for Occupational Therapy, Children's Aid Society, Children's Hospital, Society for Relief and Prevention of Tuberculosis, Frank Wyman Outing Farm.

Five thousand dollars in trust of the executors, Dr. Clopton and the Merchantile Trust Co. for Pierre Chouteau Jr.

To Emma Messing, as an appreciation, is bequeathed $5000; to J. Frank Parker, manager of Walker's Brook Hill Farm, $1500, and his son, Robert, $1000. The residue is left to Dr. Clopton.

The Walker fortune began with young Walker's grandmother, Mrs. Lily Lambert, widow of one of the founders of the Lambert Pharmaceutical Co. She died in 1889, dividing her estate in equal trust funds among her children. They were to receive the income for life, and the funds were then to pass outright to their heirs.

Judge Carlos Hardy, despite approval by the State's Attorney of their plea for probation, decided they must serve their terms of one to 10 years in St. Louis Queen. Those serving him are: Kirkland, Iris Burns, Anita Davis, Harry Isaac and Joe Hunt. All but Hunt were players of small parts in motion pictures.

Subdues Steer in Chicago Streets.

CHICAGO, June 29.—Sgt. Anthony Hubert of the Chicago police, who used to be a cowboy, saw a steer escape from the stockyards yesterday and charge down the street thronged with pedestrians. He stood by the running board of his automobile until it was well abreast of the animal then made a flying leap to the steer's back and subdued it.

Lindbergh arrived from London Friday and has had several conferences with promoters of commercial aviation, but has announced no plan other than a tour of the country under the auspices of the Guggenheim Fund.

Col. Lindbergh and Maj. Lanphier expect to reach St. Louis between 3 and 4 o'clock this afternoon. Lindbergh said he planned to take off for Ottawa Thursday night or Friday morning.

Col. Lindbergh's airplane tour of the United States, to be financed by the Guggenheim Fund, will begin in about three weeks. Between 60 and 90 days will be given to the trip, which is to be made solely to increase popular interest in all phases of aviation.

DE VALERA SEEKS REFERENDUM Objects to Oath of Allegiance to the Crown.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Ireland, June 29.—Eamon De Valera, Republican leader, issued a statement today declaring his intention of seeking the signature of 75,000 electors and thus forcing a referendum on the question of the oath of allegiance to the King, which is now made mandatory after a deputy elected to the Dail Eireann to the King.

De Valera said he was also taking legal proceedings along lines indicated by his lawyers.

KERRICK'S SLAYERS TO PRISON

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 29.—Charles A. Lindbergh, en route to St. Louis, accompanied by Maj. Thomas Lanphier, landed at Wilbur Wright Field at 4:10 o'clock this evening to refuel. He took off again for St. Louis at 4:40 o'clock.

CAPITAL REJOICES OVER SUCCESS OF HAWAIIAN FLIGHT

"Whole of Army Unites in Hearty Congratulations,"
Secretary of War Davis
Cables Flyers.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Enthusiasm among Army officials, held in check until victory was assured, burst the barriers when the definite word came today that Lieuts. Maitland and Hegenberger had accomplished their major aviation achievement, and landed in Hawaii.

In Army circles the flight of Commander Byrd towards Europe was shoved into the background by the success of the two Army flyers, but Secretary of the Navy Willbur mentioned the Byrd attempt in his message of congratulations to the flyers.

The congratulations and appreciation of the Army were sent to Maitland and Hegenberger in telegrams from Secretary of War Davis and Assistant Secretary of War Davis.

Davis Proud of Feat.

"The War Department rejoices in the imminently successful outcome of your flight," Secretary Davis said. "We are justifiably proud that the serials of another great span of the air have been made possible by the skill, courage and daring officers of the Air Corps. The whole of the Army unites in hearty congratulations to Lieut. Hegenberger and yourself for your flight, which is a valuable contribution to the development of aviation."

To Maitland, Assistant Secretary Davis said:

"Congratulations. You certainly justified our confidence in your skill and judgment. We are proud of you."

Hegenberger received this message from the assistant secretary:

"Congratulations. It was a wonderful piece of work and I am delighted beyond words."

Wibur Cabled Congratulations.

Secretary Willbur's message to the two men read:

"I am delighted with the success of the army plane in carrying out the plan of our sister service. I can't help alluding to the fact that coming on top of the Byrd flight, and the Lindbergh and Chamberlin flights, this latest flight again demonstrates the capability of the air-cooled engine and represents a distinct advance in aviation."

Secretary of State Kellogg in a statement said:

"I am delighted to learn of the successful flight to Hawaii from California of the intrepid aviators, Lieuts. Lester J. Maitland and Albert Hegenberger. In an army plane the courageous officers have added to the glory and achievement of the men in the service and have played a noteworthy part in the advancement of aviation."

Rear Admiral Moffett, naval air chief, radioed:

"The naval bureau of aeronautics wishes to congratulate you on the successful completion of your flight."

"The possibilities of quick communication between continental United States and its distant possessions and the reliability of new scientific instruments guiding long overseas flights were demonstrated by the flight," Assistant Secretary Davis said. The feat, he said, "opens up a new vista of communication between America and its overseas possessions."

SAYS $50,000 MALT
FIRM MAKES $500,000

Business Started on "Shoe String," Ousted Partner Testifies in Suit for Receiver.

A modest $50,000 malt extract concern, catering exclusively to the home brew trade, can do $500,000 business annually, if properly handled, according to John J. Miravalle, malt distributor and manufacturer, who testified yesterday in his suit for receivership and accounting against the Red Crown Malt Products Co., of Belleville. The suit is being tried before Federal Judge Wham in East St. Louis.

Miravalle filed his suit, he said, because the group of ten Belleville business men whom he organized into a malt company, using the old Star Brewery building as their factory, threw him and his brother, Lewis, out of the concern when the malt extract producing plant got under way.

The paid-in capital was to amount to $50,000, Miravalle said, and the business anticipated, with the old brewery turning out several hundred thousand pounds of malt extract the first year, was $400,000.

The Miravalle brothers, for their experience in certain equipment they turned over to the new concern, and for a trade list of 2000 customers, were to receive $20,000 worth of stock. Instead, they were ordered off the premises of the concern they had made possible by T. J. Christman, president of the Red Crown Malt Products Co., Miravalle testified.

Miravalle and his brother Lewis, also of St. Louis, operated a malt extract packing and distributing plant at 18 South Second street before they decided to have a factory of their own, Miravalle testified.

Starting out on a shoe-string 6 years ago, their business had reached a volume of $55,000 annually in June, 1926. Of this, $15,000 was net profit.

The profit could be vastly increased, Miravalle believed, if he got his malt plant back into his own. He, therefore, entered into negotiations with the group of Belleville men, he said, agreeing to deliver his trade lists and certain machinery in his Second street plant. In addition to stock in the new concern, the Miravalle brothers were to see to the marketing of the malt extract, and each was to receive a minimum of $100 a week, he testified. Instead they were "let out."

Much of the testimony, particularly under cross-examination, dealt with the expert knowledge of Miravalle as to the production of malt. Many attending the trial craned their necks eagerly as Miravalle explained exactly how malt extract is prepared.

Counsel for the Belleville group, which later changed the name of the company from the Red Crown to the White Star Malt Products Co., attempted to show that Miravalle did not have so much experience in producing malt as he claimed, and that he and his brother had continued to operate the Second street packing plant, after his connection with the new concern in Belleville.

The Belleville men named in the suit are John Biebel, August Oney, Hans Hartman, John Birsner, Louis Reuter, Fred Glueck, T. J. Christman, William Burghardt, Edward Rock and Jacob Sauer. According to August Oney, likely to go on the stand, the concern fell a little short of Miravalle's expectations and in one year increased its capitalization by turning back profits—only from $50,000 to $140,000. The volume of business at the end of this year, according to Oney, will be $400,000.

The concern expects to pay its first dividend when the $400,000 volume is reached. It will be, they anticipate, from 15 to 20 per cent.

SAFETY GATES TO REMAIN

AT SKINNER RAIL CROSSING
Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 23.—Application of the Rock Island Railroad for permission to substitute an automatic electric bell and sign for the manual safety gates at the rail crossing on Skinner boulevard, St. Louis, was dismissed by the Public Service Commission yesterday.

The city of St. Louis and the railroad joined in asking this action, in view of considerable public opposition to the change.

The Missouri Pacific Railroad, however, was given permission to install electric bells at its Minnesota and Pennsylvania avenue grade crossings in St. Louis for a trial period of 13 months. After 13 months the city and the road will report on the effectiveness of the new system. Gates operated by watchmen will be discontinued.

The Missouri Pacific also sought to install bells at Michigan and Virginia avenue grade crossings, but this was refused, the commission holding it had not been shown fully that new signals afforded greater protection than gates and watchmen.

$25,000 BOND FOR BURGLARY

Maplewood Justice Sets High Bail for Negro Woman.

Justice of the Peace Fiedler of Maplewood, yesterday held a Negro woman charged with burglary on $25,000 bond.

The woman, Miss Nellie Dukes, 1521 Clark avenue, is charged with stealing a pair of slippers, six napkins, two tablecloths, a lace curtain, and four doilies, from the home of Edward Keller, 4901 Laclede Station road, St. Louis County. She denies the charge.

ROYALTON, ILL., BANKER GETS ONE TO 10 YEARS

William J. Lovel Jr. Pleads Guilty of $58,000 Embezzlement of Bank's Funds.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BENSON, Ill., June 29.—William J. Lovel, cashier of the State Bank of Royalton, which was closed last Thursday after a number of irregularities in the bank's accounts had been discovered, pleaded guilty to embezzlement of $58,000 from the bank here yesterday and was sentenced to Southern Illinois Penitentiary for an indeterminate term of one to 10 years, by Circuit Judge C. H. Miller.

Lovel refused to discuss the bank's irregularities, other than to admit he was responsible for them, that his defalcations had extended over a period of seven years and that they were committed to cover bad investments.

An audit of the bank's affairs, completed just before Lovel made his plea, showed a shortage in the institution's accounts of about the amount which Lovel admitted, in his plea.

It is believed that depositors who have approximately $210,000 in the bank will suffer no loss through Lovel's peculations. Stockholders in the bank are liable for an amount equal to the capital stock of $25,000. Lovel was bonded for $10,000 to cover that amount of State funds in the bank. It is said Lovel owns considerable real estate in Royalton also.

The audit disclosed Lovel was in partnership with several other citizens of Royalton in a number of enterprises. The names of these men, with that of Lovel, appear on notes for loans from the bank. Among the names bearing Lovel's name are: for $15,000, which was for the construction of a new Christian Church. Four other men who signed the note with Lovel will be unable to make it good, it was said. The church has never been completed.

CHAUFFEUR KILLED WHEN

REPAIRING DUMP TRUCK

Henry Schneider, 18, Buried Under Load of Dirt; Dead When Extricated by Workmen.

Henry Schneider, 18, years old, a chauffeur, was killed at 10:30 a.m. today when pinned beneath the rear end of a one-ton dump truck, under which he was sitting while attempting to repair the dump.

Schneider, an employee of the George L. Weber Construction Co., 4209 Kosciusko, had hauled a load of dirt to a dumping ground at 6100 Gravois Avenue. As he sat in the truck, contented from the driver's seat, failed to notice the rear end of the truck to make repairs. Apparently the trigger worked unexpectedly and caught him beneath the dump, fracturing his spine and causing internal injuries. He was dead when extricated by other employees.

He resided in the 1320 block of North Twenty-second street.

ILLINOIS' 48-HOUR WORK BILL FOR WOMEN VOTED DOWN

Defeat in House, 68 to 59; Compromise Measure Also Defeated.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 29.—The House last night killed the woman's 48-hour-a-week work bill, 68 to 59. A compromise measure had been previously defeated. This bill introduced in the Senate by Henry Starr, Chicago, asked for a minimum working week of 48 hours with a half holiday on Saturdays.

Immediately after defeat of the bill, the Lance-Deck-Sheed bill for a tax on personal incomes was called up for advancement. These two bills were voted down, according to the terms of the agreement that ended the filibuster against the bonding bills are to be given prompt consideration in the House.

Utilities Power and Light.

Announcement has been made in New York of the offering of $1,000,000 of 7 per cent preferred stock of the Utilities Power and Light Corporation, which last week sold $20,000,000 of its 5 1/2 per cent bonds.

Utilities Power and Light Corporation is headed by Harvey E. Clarke of Chicago, who recently contracted to purchase from Charles A. T. the entire 200,000 shares of common stock of La Crosse Gas and Electric Co., which controls about 99 per cent of the common stock of La Crosse Gas Light Co. At the same time, Clarke bought for about $7,000,000, 99 per cent of the preferred and common stock of the St. Louis Coke and Iron Co.

BEING COOL IS A STATE OF MIND
How a person feels in the summertime is determined by his state of mind. If everything about him looks cool and comfortable he, too, feels cool and comfortable.

It is possible to enjoy St. Louis in warm weather if one has furniture that is made for 98-degrees-in-the-shade weather. The Prufrock-Linton Furniture Co., Fourth and St. Charles Sta., are showing a pleasing variety of summer furniture for indoor and outdoor use.

TWO MEN SHOT IN OUTBREAK
Fifteen Are Held Following Clash at Greenville, Pa.

By the Associated Press.

in jail at Charleroi charged with felonious shooting with intent to kill.

The shooting occurred when a pedestrian threw something into a bus in which the 15 men were riding. It is said to have been fired from the bus, rang out and two Granville residents were wounded, although not seriously.

Unidentified Man Dies at Work
The body of an unidentified man about 50 years old, who was found dead last night in a field found during the Immaculate Heart School Normandy, is being held at Coroner Bopp's in Kirkwood awaiting identification. The man applied for work at the school yesterday and was sent to work in the field. When he did not return in the evening search was begun which resulted in finding the body.

Herman Weible, 27 years old, an ironworker, was fined $500 and sentenced to the workhouse for 30 days "for being guilty of the most shocking case of reckless driving in the history of this court."

Weible lost control of his car the afternoon of Feb. 6, as he approached the intersection of Minnesota and Chippewa avenue. Swerving to avoid another machine, traveling southward, he ran his car onto the sidewalk at a high rate of speed, striking and seriously injuring Edward Rein, 56 years old, a pedestrian.

As a result of injuries, Rein's left leg was amputated below the knee. Rein's cheekbone was broken also. First jammed against a wall by the bumper of the car, Rein was later knocked through a plate glass window.

Weible testified that he was traveling only 14 miles an hour when he sighted the other car, and in attempting to put his foot on the brake stepped on the accelerator instead.

John Mackay, principal of a public school and the driver of the other car, said that Weible's machine was traveling at a high rate of speed, and that he had to swerve to the left, applying his brake, to avoid a collision. Weible will appear.

EXTENSION OF WATER MAINS

TO KINLOCH PARK DEMANDED

County Health Officer Applies to Public Service Commission to Compel Service.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, June 29.—Dr. A. E. Walter, Health Commissioner of St. Louis County, today filed a formal complaint with the Public Service Commission asking that the St. Louis County Water Co. be required to lay water mains to furnish service to Kinloch Park, in St. Louis County, at its own expense.

He declared the district, which claims a population of 3500, many of them Negroes, was without adequate water supply and was dependent upon shallow wells and springs, many of which were contaminated by surface drainage. He said an emergency existed because of the danger of typhoid and the demand for water service was a public measure.

Dr. Walter said most of the residents of the town were unable to raise money to pay "the exorbitant prices" for water company asked to lay these mains. The water company has a rule that on certain extensions part of the cost must be paid by the consumer to be refunded later. The company's mains are within a half mile of the border of Kinloch Park, Dr. Walters says.

WALSKA DENIES DIVORCE TALK

Says Harold McCormick Will Join Her in Paris.

PARIS, June 29.—Inquisitive Americans, with their questions as to her operatic plans and their talk of scandal and divorce have ruined New York for Ganna Walska, she told the Associated Press today. Paris now has all her affection, she declared, although she once preferred New York to other cities because "it has the best music in the world."

Mme. Walska desires once for all to lay the ghost of her rumored plans to divorce Harold McCormick. "You can't talk about what isn't," she remarked.

"There is no question of divorce, and it is silly for people to keep talking to me about divorce," McCormick, she added, will join her in Paris this autumn. He will accompany her back to the United States, where she expects to sing this winter. She knows that America will no longer be her home.

CLOTHES OF FLYERS IN PARIS

Civilian Outfits for 3 of America's Crew Shipped Weeks Ago.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 29.—When the crew of the monoplane America gets to France three of its members will find clothing of their own waiting there for their use at receptions and in returning home by steamer, if they return that way.

But Bernt Balchen will have to get along as best he may in his flying clothes, garments purchased abroad, an outfit made up of extra pieces of his comrades' gear. On May 19, when it was believed the flight would start any day, clothes belonging to Byrd, Acosta and Noville were shipped to Paris on the Leviathan. Decision to carry a fourth man was made so late that Balchen had no time to send over civilian toggery.

SAVED FROM ELECTRIC CHAIR

Aged Oklahoman's Death Sentence to Be Commuted to Life.

By the Associated Press.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., June 29.—Gov. Henry S. Johnston said today that he will commute the sentence of C. E. ("Old Man") Marble of Ingersoll, Ok., slayer of a boy tormenter from death to life imprisonment.

Marble was sentenced to be executed in the electric chair July 29. He had been given a death sentence, asserting that he was going blind and preferred death to imprisonment. He refused to appeal. Letters of intercession, however, poured into the Governor's office from all parts of the United States.

My Secret for Finer-Textured Cakes

I must confess that I haven't always been successful in the making of cake. I suspect that I possessed more zeal than skill—though I have had many successes. But when I learned to exert care in the heating of butter and sugar, and to exhibit restraint at the finish by stirring only a moment after the final ingredients were added, my cakes improved.

But the greatest improvement I have ever made in cakes has been through the use of Carnation Milk. Besides being evaporated to double richness and sterilized for safekeeping, it is homogeneous, creamily creamy, broken down into minute particles and distributed throughout every drop. As a result, cakes are not only rich with this uniformly distributed, double share of cream, but because of the fineness of the particles the texture is exceptionally smooth, fragile and fine.

Carnation gives similar results in all cookery, a creamy smoothness to sauces, candies and ice cream, a richness to soups, and a delicate texture to puddings, cakes and waffles that even the best cooks have not been able to attain. The convenient, economical and dependable form of milk—it's just pure, whole milk with about half the natural water removed and nothing added.

It Makes Better Cake

THE perfect cake is the cake of perfect “grain” or texture. And the way to get perfect texture is to use Carnation—the double-rich milk with the cream “homogenized”—evenly shared by every drop.

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his “calls” were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness, etc., all of which required a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1872), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pep-sin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drugstores as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pep-sin are being used a year.

In great and rapid increase on repeat buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pep-sin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed.

While women, children and elder-

BORAH WARNS AGAINST AIDING WAR-MAKERS

Senator Calls Effort to Aid Europe “Delusive” Urges Problems at Home.

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, June 28.—A call to the Government and the nation to turn their attention to reconstruction at home rather than in Europe was made here by Senator Borah (Rep.) of Idaho last night.

Speaking at the annual convention of the International Advertising Association, the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said he was more interested in placing the Mississippi flood sufferers back in their homes, in the construction of the Great Lakes-to-the-Atlantic waterway and the harnessing of the Colorado River than he was in “the delusive effort to aid Europe.”

Referring specifically to recent overproduction of oil and to the Mississippi flood, Senator Borah said it was clear that the nation should turn its attention to working out “an intelligent and permanent national policy to conserve, for the use of all, the marvellous natural wealth” with which the country had been endowed.

He declared that the cancellation of part of the debts owed by the European countries and the loaning of American billions to Europe served but little in reconstruction the world.

Helping War Makers.

“We are not helping the people of Europe but the war makers of Europe,” he said. “The history of Europe during the last 30 years has in every element of strife which preceded the war.

“The Premier of Italy in a public speech declares that he is on the way to creating an army of 5,000,000 men, to the building of a great navy and to the reconstruction of an air force second to none in the world.

“The break between Great Britain, the assassination of the Russian Minister in Poland, the executions in Russia have made Europe, mentally and physically, an armed camp. The Premier of France, at Luneville, delivered a public address stamped in bitterness and intolerance. Tearing open old wounds, summoning the spirits of fear and suspicion and hate, he called for a policy of force and fanned the earth with the seeds of war. The League convenes in an atmosphere of dissension and strife.

“I see neither reconstruction, nor aid for peace, nor service to humanity in the cancellation of debts under such circumstances, or in loaning millions of American money to Europe. I see the very opposite of these things.

Enough to Do at Home.

“I am more interested in working out a policy of conservation which will dedicate our great natural wealth to the happiness of our own people and thus strengthening the foundation of our own institutions than I am in trying to build up European markets under the policies now obtaining.

“There is enough, more than enough, to do at home. There is honest work for every dollar in the United States. There are markets to be built up here of far more value to the American farmer than the fugitive markets which we are hunting abroad.

“There is room for a constructive program here which will serve the cause of peace and serve humanity. There is a home job to do and prudence and patriotism alike urge us to the task.”

Senator Borah said that the greatest domestic problem since the Civil War was what the Government should do in putting an end to the waste of natural resources—oil, coal, timber and water power.

“Public interest demands that this waste should cease,” he said. “Justice to the people demands that unjust prices and exploitation shall be prevented. Common sense and the most ordinary sense of humanity insist that our rivers are no longer a menace to millions of our countrymen.

“Making our rivers safe and serviceable is not local but general, not sectional but national, not politics but business. There are some signs that the old-time piecemeal procrastinating political method is again contemplated. Nothing could be more unfortunate nor in the end more expensive. Expense and great expense, may be the part of true economy. In the face of great tasks, parsimony becomes extravagance, timidity a crime.”

SAYS SUGAR BOWL IN CAFE CONTAINED WASHING SODA

Attorney Who Alleges He Became Ill After Drinking Coffee.

Suit for $8,000 Damages.

Suit for $8,000 damages was filed in Circuit Court yesterday against the Melshimer Baking Co. by L. Landauer, an attorney, in the Bank of Commerce Building, who alleges that he was made ill by drinking coffee in one of the company's restaurants, at 277 De Baliviere avenue.

The petition recites that Landauer was made ill by washing soda, which he says was placed in a sugar bowl at the restaurant through carelessness of one of the company's employees.

THIS GRAPELESS WINE MADE FROM MICROBEPasteur Formula Brought to America Calls Only for Germs and Their Herb Diet.By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.NEW YORK, June 29.—Wine of 20 varieties without the use of grapes, at a cost of 15 cents a gallon, was the magical promise held out to thirsting Americans by
G. Vingerhoets, purser of the Red
Star liner Pennland, when she arrived at her dock from Antwerp.As equipment he brought numerous glass vials containing microbes "in a solid state," and various herbs, designated as
"chicken feed," which form the dise of the germs. With these, plus sugar and water, he has volunteered to produce in the laboratories of Columbia University champagne, Sauterne, port, claret,
Burgundy, Madera, Bourgogne, Frontignac, or any other of three score varieties.As a proof of confidence in his formula, the purser introduced a Belgian attorney, Carl Butayes, imported by the inventor at his own expense to act as his legal and business adviser, and as his counsel in any difficulties which may arise with prohibition officers. The expenses of his legal department, said Vingerhoets, already amount to $4,000 and to pay that he is planning to pledge a stamp collection he values at $14,000.Passengers who tested a Sauterne fermented according to his method averred that it was superior in bouquet and potency to the natural article served at the Pennland's tables.The process, he explained, is based on researches of Louis Pasteur, who is said to have discovered that the various sorts of wine are not dependent on the kind of grape from which they are made,
but upon the specific microbe which flourishes on this or that sort of wine.If a consumer wishes a quantity of port, he continued, all he has to do is mix water and sugar in a suitable vessel, add the right microbe and its favorite herb, and the germs do the rest. The temperature for the first few days should be 83 degrees, Fahrenheit, and taper off to 50. The "kick" of the beverage is determined by the length of fermentation, and three days are reckoned to 1 per cent of alcohol. For instance, if Burgundy of 13 per cent content is desired, the time of fermentation would be 39 days. The wine should stand in bottles a few days before it is consumed.STORE WHERE FIRST SUNDAE WAS MADE, IN 1891, IS SOLDChance Suggestion of Young Ithaca (N. Y.) Clergyman Gave Birth to Idea.By the Associated Press.
ITHACA, N. Y.—The birth place of the sundae has been sold, and with its sale the owner of the building has brought to light again its history.It happened one hot summer day in Ithaca in 1891. It was the habit of a young clergyman to drop into a drugstore after the sermon for a dish of ice cream. But this Sunday, ice cream lacked its usual appeal and he hesitated when C. C.
Platte, the proprietor, asked,
"What'll it be?""How about a soda water?"
Platte suggested.The young minister did not want that either, but he thought himself to combine the two."Let me have a dish of ice cream with some of that soda syrup on it," he said. "Make it cherry."So the sundae originated. The young minister was delighted, but the child of his brain lacked a name."Why not call it a 'Sunday'?"
asked the preacher. And "sunday" became corrupted into "sunday." Cornell students, scattering, spread the idea and the word finally found its way into dictionaries.

MT. VERNON, Ill., June 29.—
Milford O. Sexton, 10 years old, son of Fred Sexton, living near Wayne
City, died in a hospital last night of injuries suffered when a horse
he was riding ran away with him yesterday afternoon. The boy's foot caught in the harness and he was dragged a quarter of a mile.
The boy had started to take a bucket of water to his father working in a field some distance away.SKIN

DAUDET'S RELEASE MADE ISSUE OF CONFIDENCE IN GOVERNMENT
 Chamber of Deputies. However, Sidestep Question by Post-polling Vote.

By the Associated Press
 PARIS, June 29.—The monumental hoax, whereby Leon Daudet, Royalist leader, his lieutenant Delest and the communist Bernard were released from Sainte prison several days ago, is being rung in the Paris salons, but the government has balked at a Socialist attempt to put it on the floor of the Chamber of Deputies.

The Socialist spokesman, Ubray declared the deputies ought to be allowed to have a little fun of the affair. Minister of Justice Barthou, made the question one of confidence in the Government and the interpellations were postponed without date by a vote of 350 to 186.

Meanwhile, telephone experts and a squadron of police made a desperate search for the man. Daudet's newspaper, and again yesterday afternoon, searching for papers that might give a clue to how the hoax was hatched.

Search for Daudet, who is under a five-months' sentence for libeling a taxicab driver, has been ordered throughout France.

Maurice Pujo, editor in chief of the Royalist newspaper L'Action Francaise, was arrested today following further investigations at the newspaper plant.

The police say they found seven secret telephone lines in L'Action Francaise building. Barthou, commissioner of the criminal police, arrested Pujo at his home. The editor, leaving under protest, turned to his 83-year-old mother and remarked: "All this is just a comedy—it's one vast joke."

OPPOSITION TO BRIDGE SITE NEAR WATERWORKS TOWERS

Waterways Engineers Protests Against Location for $3,000,000 Highway Toll Span.

Opposition to the location of the proposed $3,000,000 highway toll bridge near the intake towers of the waterworks, at Chain of Rocks, was expressed today by James S. Brodie, assistant chief engineer of the Inland Waterways Corporation. He spoke at a hearing before Maj. John C. Gotwals, Corps of Engineers, in the Federal Building.

A bill authorizing construction of the bridge has been passed by Congress, but its location and other details are subject to the approval of the War Department, for which Maj. Gotwals is acting.

Brodie told Maj. Gotwals that the location at Chain of Rocks is particularly swift, largely due to the position of the intake towers, and that a bridge there would make navigation extremely dangerous to large steamboats and particularly to tows of barges. The backers of the bridge project are Baxter L. Brown, E. Green, Tom Scott and John R. Scott.

COAL MINE WAGE CONFERENCE FAILS TO SETTLE STRIKE

Chicago Meeting Adjourns Without Peace Agreement Basis Having Been Reached.

By the Associated Press
 CHICAGO, June 29.—The wage scale conference between Illinois bituminous coal miners and mine operators looking toward ending the suspension of mining effective since April 1, when the old contract expired, was adjourned today without an agreement having been reached.

The miners presented a proposal for renewal of the contract under the Jacksonville agreement.

The operators rejected it and presented a resolution saying they could not operate under the Jacksonville wage scale and that as long as the miners would not recede, it would be useless to continue the conference.

Inspect County Grade Crossings.
 A party of 25 civil engineers and railroad officials yesterday toured through St. Louis County inspecting hazardous grade crossings with a view to undertaking their elimination. The tour was under the auspices of the County Chamber of Commerce. Representatives of the five railroads and the United Railways were in the party. The trip started at Wellston and concluded at Pacific.

"Mercantile Service"

Last week the Excelsior Sales Co. rented space in our storage vaults for their records, and Mrs. Blake, housewife, rented a $5 safe deposit box; Paul Franklin turned in $100,000 in called Second Liberty Bonds for new long-term municipals, and Jim Schneider bought his first investment, a $500 industrial bond; the Walton Cooperage Co. opened a $50,000 checking account and established a line of credit, while Mary Brice, typist, opened a savings account with $5; the Real Estate Loan Department continued negotiations for a proposed loan of $300,000 on a new hospital in the Southwest, and sold Dr. Herrman a $500 First Mortgage Note for investment; a college received a bequest under the will of the late James Simpson in the form of a check for $20,000 from the Trust Department, and Arnold Kelley created an $18,000 life insurance trust for the benefit of his wife and children; Brian Murry made the regular deposit in his savings account toward the first payment on a home, while the Real Estate Department was selling the county estate of the late Howard Stahl for an unnamed figure; these are but a dozen of the week's transactions, set down to show that "Mercantile Service" amounts to a lot more than the receiving of deposits and the paying of checks....

Names of the patrons listed above are not right, for obvious reasons, but "Mercantile Service" must be right, for this reason: It is holding the business of 110,000 patrons, and attracting more patrons every day. You can use it—to advantage.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
DETROIT, June 29.—The Browns wound up their long road campaign here this afternoon, losing the fourth straight game to the Tigers.

The score was 9 to 3.
Manager Howley elected Sam Jones to try his skill on the Bengal club boys, who simultaneously with the arrival of the St. Louis delegation, started a batting streak.

SECOND INNING.
BROWNS—Rice walked. Schulte singled to right, Rice going to third. Stoner tossed out Schang, Schulte going to second, while Rice held third. Gerber filed to Heilmann, Rice scoring and out. E. Miller, NO RUNS.

DETROIT—Warner singled to left. Gehringen grounded out to Sisler, Warner going to second. Manush lined to Rice. Fothergill popped to Melillo in short center. NO RUNS.

WASHINGTON WINS JUNIOR VARSITY RACE

By the Associated Press.
REGATTA COURSE, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 29.—For the third straight year the Washington junior varsity eight rowed to victory today in the annual three-mile grind of the Poughkeepsie classic, the final preliminary of the junior race. Columbia was second, a length and a half back, with California third, Pennsylvania fourth and Cornell fifth, four full lengths behind the winner.

Washington's time for the three-mile course smashed by a wide margin the record set last year by the husky crew when it pulled the distance in 15 minutes, 12 and 4-5 seconds. The record, made by Washington last year when the race was lengthened to three miles for the first time, was 15:40 1-5.

Columbia's time, as well as that of every crew in the race, bettered the old mark. The New York crew finished in 15:23 1-5; California, 15:34 1-5; Pennsylvania, 15:34 4-5; Cornell 15:35 3-5.

Navy's crack crew, rowing in the freshman two-mile opening event of the historic Intercollegiate Regatta for the first time, swept to decisive victory today with a margin of 1 1/4 lengths over Syracuse. Columbia was third, two full lengths behind the leaders.

Navy's time for the two mile pull was announced at 9:45, considerably behind the mark of 9:11 2-3 for the course set by Cornell in 1919.

Syracuse pulled the distance in 9:50 1-5; Columbia in 9:52 3-5; Cornell 9:54 1-5; Pennsylvania, 9:58 2-5; California 10:06; Wisconsin 10:16.

The varsity race will start about 4:30, Eastern daylight saving time (St. Louis time, 4:30).

Cochlin Released.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., June 29.—Dave Cochlin, the catcher of the Bloomington Three Eye club, was released Wednesday. Cochlin, who suffered a broken leg last year, never attained his hitting stride this year and was cut loose to keep the Bloomers under the player limit.

The BILLIONAREA

~ the Greater St. Louis Market

For low selling costs, select concentrated markets

Where Stores are reached in Minutes and Feet

The Billionarea

The Greater St. Louis Market
The Billionarea is the Greater St. Louis Market as it actually exists and as officially designated by the Audit Bureau of Circulations. Its boundary is simply the physical limits of metropolitan St. Louis on both the Missouri and Illinois sides of the Mississippi. It includes all (and only) that area where Concentration of People, Dollars and Coverage (P+D+C) offers a volume market at low cost for advertisers.

P+D+C

The Advertiser's Micrometer of a Newspaper

The very principles that have been long recognized as fundamental in the analysis of any market are for exactly the same reasons fundamental in the analysis of a newspaper's market.

Those principles are the relation of Population, Dollars (or Purchasing Power) to Coverage.

The P+D+C Manual and the Book of Information About The Billionarea—the Greater St. Louis Market—will be mailed free to anyone interested in the advertising and sales opportunity of this market.

In concentrated metropolitan markets, the salesman uses street route lists instead of road maps or time tables. He has the greatest possible proportion of selling hours, and the fewest possible traveling hours. His customers and prospects are minutes and feet apart, not hours and miles, as in small town and rural communities.

For example, the route lists supplied to advertisers by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch cover more than 16,000 retailers of all classifications in this market of only 16 by 21 miles—The Billionarea. Stores are concentrated here on an average of 105 per square mile, as against an average of less than one store per square mile in the small town and rural communities. What a picture of volume selling at low cost in this concentrated market as compared with the slow, costly selling in the sparsely settled country districts!

In The Billionarea, as in any other metropolitan market, the salesman knows when he comes to the boundary line where low cost selling ends and high cost selling begins. The division is as unmistakable as if marked by the great wall of China.

On the inside are concentrated population, high average purchasing power, closely packed retail districts. On the outside are scattered population, low average purchasing power, scattered retail outlets.

And most important to the advertiser:—Within The Billionarea, where population, purchasing power and retail outlets are concentrated—newspaper circulation coverage is also concentrated and so complete that it is effective in moving almost every kind of merchandise in volume.

Outside The Billionarea, circulation coverage is such a negligible proportion of the total families that it is of little consequence in its influence on sales.

Within The Billionarea, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch alone reaches practically every home of purchasing consequence—30,000 more families daily, 80,000 more Sunday in this area than are reached by any other St. Louis newspaper.

The value of its far greater coverage in this concentrated market is so generally recognized that the Post-Dispatch carries more advertising in all classifications combined—local, national and classified—than the second and third St. Louis newspapers added together.

DRYS CONSIDER
BI-PARTISAN SLATE
IN 1928 CAMPAIGN

Plan to Nominate Dry
Democrats for Presidential Candidate and Dry
Republican as Running Mate.

MOVEMENT AIMED AT GOV. SMITH

McAdoo's Name Being Discussed as Possible Standard Bearer by Foes of Liquor.

By DAVID LAWRENCE,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright 1927.)

WASHINGTON.—Sympathizers with the dry side in politics are discussing a nation-wide movement to establish a bipartisan national committee for action in the approaching presidential campaign.

The plan is to select a dry Democrat and a dry Republican from every state in the Union. Church organizations interested in maintaining prohibition are expected to figure largely in the effort which involves the calling of a national convention by the bipartisan committee. At such a convention of dry delegates from both the Republican and Democratic parties, the idea is to nominate an outstanding dry Democrat. This would take place in advance of the Republican and Democratic national conventions, but the purpose of it would be to influence primarily the kind of candidate to be selected by the Democrats.

An effort would be made by the drys of the Democratic faith to go into the Democratic convention with the argument that choice of the bipartisan convention is the logical nominee of the Democrats. Failing to win, the same movement would be kept up independently during the campaign in the hope of getting the Southern states particularly to cast their electoral votes for a dry Democrat, even though he might not win the regular Democratic nomination.

Move Aimed at Gov. Smith.

The movement is aimed at Gov. Smith of New York, as well as any other wet democrat who might be considered and his stand of origin in the Pacific Coast, where he is discussed for the bipartisan nomination. L. William Gibbs McAdoo. Other names mentioned are Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana and Gov. Donnelly of Ohio. The sum and substance of the movement is that the drys are fearful Gov. Smith may enter the Democratic national convention with commanding strength and that his own personal popularity might influence the convention to subordinate the wet and dry issue, which to the drys is the paramount question of the day. If a national convention should nominate a wet they feel this would be a body blow to the cause of prohibition. Therefore, even though many may succeed in getting the Democrats to nominate a conspicuous dry, they hope to prevent the nomination of a conspicuous wet.

Drys Have Organization and Money.

All independent movements in politics have been looked upon as more or less futile in the last generation because they have been associated either with personal ambition or with a radical cause that had not yet penetrated the mind of the average voter. Funds also have been lacking to go on with the tremendous job of organization necessary to compete with state laws, to get on ballots. But, the drys have both the organization and the money. Entirely apart also from the effect that the movement might have on the choice of a Democratic nominee, the drys would hope to prove that the same thing must be done in the future if the Republican party followed the council of Nicholas Murray Butler and others who think the wet cause should be championed by the Republican party.

Directors of Academy of Motion

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 29.—The board of directors of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences has adopted a resolution recommending that the 10 per cent salary cut ordered for workers in the motion picture industry be delayed until August.

Sixteen producers announced a reduction of from 10 to 25 per cent in salaries of all employees, including players not under contract. None of the high-salaried stars or directors was notified of a reduction of pay. The Academy board recommended a program of economy for the next two months, suggesting that this might save enough money to make reduction in salaries unnecessary.

The academy includes three representatives from each of the five members of the industry.

By the Associated Press.

RAPID CITY, S. D., June 29.—Indications are that the summer conferences President Coolidge expects to hold during his residence in the Black Hills will begin early in July to be broken up by several trips to nearby cities.

The President expects to consult representatives of industry, agriculture and commerce before he returns to Washington, and although no formal engagements have yet been listed Mr. Coolidge's list of callers is being augmented daily. After the trip to Belle Fourche next week to attend a Western celebration, it is expected that the callers will be co-ordinated in such a way as to approximate the visits of various individuals interested in the problems closely together.

Altitude Makes President Drowsy.

The first weeks here have been almost monotonous, becoming accustomed to his surroundings and viewing the natural scenery which hedges him on all sides. He has remarked to friends that the high altitude has had a tendency to make him drowsy, a condition which has been noticed by virtually all other members of his party who have lived in the lower altitudes. In addition to this usual effect of the mountains, Mr. Coolidge has had two long automobile rides almost daily, making the trip to and from the game lodge and frequently with Mrs. Coolidge, holding their breaths at this manifestation of nature's wonder, were relieved.

Rain Follows Spectacle.

The observers thanked their stars at the lucky escape from disappointment for immediately the pheasants, many talking with unconcern, were over clouds gathered again and rain began to fall.

The spectators, after the last shadow had vanished at 7:23, gave vent to their feelings in a curtain call, the roar of people on the bleak slopes of the hills hereabouts broke into cheers. Then after a moment's pause, they climbed down from the observation platform with excitement others trembling with emotion.

Totality Belt 25 Miles Wide.

The total belt in which hundreds of thousands of spectators were stationed, some only to be disappointed and others to secure good, but imperfect views, extended from North Wales cutting diagonally northeastward across England to Hartlepool in a path approximately 25 miles wide.

Stafford reported a glorious view of the full eclipse. Birmingham announced the eclipse was clearly visible, although briefly. Cardiff had a fine view, while Darlington.

Contented With Their Residence.

While a few of the days Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge have spent here have been warm, the average temperature has been pleasantly low. No matter what the thermometer reads in the daytime, however, the nights at the summer White House have been cooled by a mountain mist laden with the odor of pines and the President has taken full advantage of these nights by sleeping on an open porch where a stack of blankets is always kept to guard against a falling temperature.

The President and Mrs. Coolidge appear to be entirely contented with their summer residence and no thought has been given to their departure. Whether they intend to go direct from here to Washington early in September, or leave a little earlier to spend a few days at the Coolidge homestead in Plymouth, Vt., is not known.

President Favors Civil Control for Insular Possessions.

Specific recommendations to the next Congress for administration of American insular possessions is seen in the disclosure at the Summer White House yesterday that President Coolidge favors the vesting of control over these territories in a civil bureau of the Interior Department.

It was pointed out that Mr. Coolidge previously had expressed himself as disposed to look favorably upon any change which would place the insular possessions under a civil rather than a military authority and his recent visit with Governor-General Wood of the Philippines has tended to strengthen the opinion that the Interior Department would be the logical executive branch to govern the possessions.

Pointing that a Government commission once recommended that insular control be placed in the State Department, it was pointed out that no criticism had tended of the present administration of insular possessions by the Army and Navy. Charles Evans Hughes, while secretary of state, was not inclined to favor control by the State Department and Mr. Coolidge believes that the Interior Department would be more adaptable.

Able to Get.

GIGGLESWICK, Yorkshire, England, June 29.—Tens of thousands of awed spectators in the totality belt of this morning's solar eclipse saw a magnificent sight such as had not been witnessed in Great Britain in more than 200 years.

The totality lasted for 23 seconds. In many parts of the totality zone—the counties of Lancashire, Cheshire, Durham and Yorkshire—the spectacle was more or less marred by the mists and fleeting clouds, but it was observed in perfection here at Giggleswick, where a large crowd was assembled and where astronomical watchers made what were described as the best observations they have ever been able to take.

Spectators Awe Stricken.

The scene came to a climax after a tense race between the sun and clouds. At the last, the sun, a blinding, bright, almost gray, colder, a wind swept over the moors. The people, who had been singing, were struck silent with awe and shivered in the shadow. Soon the wondrous corona appeared for its fleeting life of unparalleled splendor to crown the solemn spectacle.

After seconds which seemed minutes, a thin crescent of sun emerged from behind the moon's cover, and the pentup feelings of observers who had been literally holding their breaths at this manifestation of nature's wonder, were relieved.

Astronomers From Ten Nations Get Almost Perfect View.

By the Associated Press.

HANKOW, China, June 29.—The old days of foreign imperialism, extra-territoriality and special privileges in China are gone forever. United States Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, declared on his arrival here, after completing a two months' tour of China.

He investigated conditions and interviewed leaders of all the government, both military and civil.

The revolution is a fact, he said. "Armed intervention by the Powers seeking a solution of the problems in China is utterly impossible. All the ills from which China is suffering are, in the Chinese mind, due to foreign imperialism. This thought is widespread and permanent, and intervention can only increase it."

Time to Revise Treaties.

Bingham said the time had arrived for a revision of unequal treaties, and the sooner the start was made, the better.

"We should begin," he said, "by making the best terms possible. The longer we wait, the poorer the terms are likely to be. The Government should send commissioners to every functioning government in China seeking relations of virtual equality. These governments, Peking, Hankow and Nanking, and the people of Yen Hsi-sen, the model government of the model province of Shanxi are all functioning, representing a separate area where we seek contact."

A cursorily examination of the religious sect of Laestadianism in North Sweden, whose members spent the night praying for a cloud to appear, making it impossible for the astronomers to penetrate the mysteries of nature. Their prayers were unanswered.

The interests of the American people would be furthered by negotiations with these governments. I do not believe that the national movement, broad and comprehensive as it is, is going to result in a united China. The country is too large, the peoples' differentiation too great, to allow one authority.

The Swedish delegation studied problems of sunbeam and will remain in North Sweden the entire summer working on this subject.

Leeds, Nottingham and several other places reported intermittent glimpses.

The count in the path of the total eclipse were widespread, all night long, some of "pre-eclipses" were seen. Moving picture houses ran continuously until 5 and 6 o'clock this morning. There were all-night balls from which men and women went in evening clothes to breakfast and then to neighboring hills for a peep at the celestial show.

There were hard events throughout the early morning. Trains kept arriving in the totality district until 3 a.m., an all-night coronation ceremony could not have produced a greater air of festivity than the big show of the heavens; it was like halloween, New York Christmas.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Worms for Bait.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
H AS the President so few vulnerable spots that you can find no other where to hit him than in his bait-box when to cast derision upon his angler-worms is to challenge the resentment of 99 out of every 100 anglers in these United States who really catch wild trout in wild waters?

An editorial in the Post-Dispatch declared that because Brother Calvin caught trout with worms the entire fishing vote, if the election were to be held now, would be lost to him. Great ginger man! don't you perceive the pernicious suggestion such an alignment? Don't you know that in the fishing angles line up against the President the bait-fishermen will straightway line up for him. And don't you know that for every bluffer amateur sport who putters around open waters with feather lures, killing a dozen fingerlings with his deadly little hooks for every real fish he takes, there are two or three hundred hard-boiled real sportsmen who fish with big worm baits that only a grownup trout can swallow and big hooks that baby fish cannot negotiate?

Listen, dear Mr. Editor. There are about half a million men and women in America who fish for trout. All but a doled-out handful of them use live bait. And they are darned well sick of being scornful and ignorant writers who abominate them as if they were muckers sportmen, when half the trout of the trout in America live in waters which your clubbed fly-fishers could not find what with bulwarks and wild grapevines, and wouldn't dare fish in them could find them and couldn't cast a fly in if they could muster handiwork enough to tote their rods through the tangle.

No, sir, the trout-fishing vote that really counts numerically isn't the vote that has its picture taken standing in preserved waters six yards broad, with its line tied to a three-pound stone anchor to make the bamboo bend. It's the vote that hunts out native trout in overgrown streams where the best flies are mosquitoes and where the fish rise to no feathered lures until so late in the season that the law is on. And don't you suppose Calvin has been tipped to that?

MALCOLM MOLLAN.

Motto for St. Louis.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
C HICAGO has made some wonderful progress. Perhaps, at least in a small way, its motto, "I Will," has lent inspiration to those who have tried to do their part.

St. Louis has made wonderful progress and has before it now most wonderful possibilities. Why not a motto for St. Louis? One that stands for strength, effort, ability, accomplishment and co-operation, the phrase that has sounded from one end of the universe to the other—"WE."

R. K. KUESTER.

False Valuations Rob the People.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
A N interesting item in today's news is the sale of International Life Insurance Co. at a price reported to be double that at which it changed hands three years ago. It is surprising that the Post-Dispatch does not seem to think this increase in value unusual when it created so much discussion about the profit, considerably less than half this, in connection with the results of Laclede Gas Co. over a period of four years.

The writer does not think that the International Life profit was excessive nor does he think that the profit of Laclede Gas results excessive except as made to seem so by the false valuations. This country is growing in property by leaps and bounds, and we should all hope there will continue to be handsome rewards paid to energetic and far-sighted men for their vision in buying properties which can be developed to a greater degree of efficiency. St. Louis needs more such men to help develop her possibilities, financial and industrial, than the virulent attacks of newspapers tend to bring here.

R. H. C.

Lindbergh's Youthful Training.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
C APT. LINDBERGH is praised today by leading statesmen everywhere as the ideal young man. What mother or father would not be proud to own this type of boy? He is courageous, honest, and has no bad habits. Yet we learn that he was not brought up in any religious denomination, that he had considerable liberties at home when a boy. "Spare the rod and spoil the child" did not seem to work out in his case, for we are told his parents never used any physical punishment, but instead they took him into their confidence, reasoned with him, taught him the good effects of good deeds, the evil effects of wrong acts.

Would it have been possible for this young man to become the noble and courageous character that he is if he had timid, bickering parents who feared to let him have a mind of his own, and applied the rod regularly while he was developing in his boyhood? There is no doubt that training of the latter kind would have had a demoralizing effect on his future courage and conduct.

Parents should heed the example of the older Lindberghs, when training their children.

O. K.

READ IT AGAIN AND WEEP.

The Supreme Court of Missouri on June 29, 1926, granted a new trial to Sylvester Baldwin.

On May 20, 1926, the Post-Dispatch printed the following editorial on the Baldwin case:

The people of St. Louis are more or less familiar with the case of Sylvester Baldwin. Still, the story is worth reviewing as an illustration of the way the criminal law is maladministered in Missouri and as an explanation of why crime is an attractive and fairly safe profession in this State.

It is a long story. It dates back to Jan. 3, 1924. On that day Roy Smith, driver for a laundry company, was held up and robbed. Smith identified Baldwin as the man who robbed him. Baldwin was tried and convicted and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. The verdict was affirmed by Division No. 2 of the Supreme Court. Baldwin's attorney, Jones H. Parker, a former assistant to Circuit Attorney Sidener, failed to file a motion for a rehearing within the time allowed by the Court's rules.

It was up to Baldwin then to begin serving his prison sentence. But Baldwin could not be found. So the Court declared Baldwin's bond forfeited. At this juncture Attorney Parker did get busy. That activity was easily understood when it became known that Parker, besides being Baldwin's attorney, was also one of the sureties on Baldwin's bond.

Parker made a number of trips to Jefferson City, interviewing Judges in chambers in his effort to get a rehearing for his client. Finally the rehearing was granted, by the votes of Chief Justice Blair and Judge T. White. Judge Walker vigorously dissented. He pointed out that the affidavits on which the rehearing was granted went completely outside the record of the trial court. He protested that the action of his colleagues on the bench was unpredictable. This new evidence which Attorney Parker presented in behalf of his client was of an alibi character. The substance of it was that Baldwin was in a saloon, assisting in removing the Christmas decorations, on the night the laundry driver was robbed. Some half dozen witnesses swore to that and were ready to testify. Yet none of them had appeared at the trial when Baldwin was convicted. How all these witnesses could have stood silently by and let a man be convicted and sentenced to prison for a crime they knew he did not commit is a mystifying thing to a layman. But it did not seem to mystify Attorney Parker. Neither did it mystify Circuit Attorney Sidener who also interested himself in the case by writing a letter to Chief Justice Blair in which he said he felt an innocent man had been convicted and declared he would not prosecute the case if it were remanded.

Unlike his associate, Chief Justice Blair and Justice White, Judge Walker was not at all impressed by Sidener's letter. With biting irony Judge Walker remarked that Sidener's "pangs of conscience" were belated, observing further that Sidener's "lions penitentiae" was the Board of Pardons, not the Supreme Court.

Well, the rehearing has been concluded, and Division No. 2 has for the second time affirmed Baldwin's conviction. The opinion, written by Commissioner Rainey, was based on the record of the trial. The Parker affidavits and the Sidener letter were disregarded.

Does this end the long-drawn tale? Will Baldwin finally go to prison? Not so fast. Chief Justice Blair has dissented from the majority opinion. He holds a reversible error was committed in the trial of the case. This dissent is ventured, may enable Baldwin's attorney to have the case transferred to the court en banc.

Just one more incident. When he was importing the Judges of the Supreme Court for a rehearing Attorney Parker was asked as to the character of his client. He answered not so vaguely that Baldwin was a man who had never "been a member of society." Since then a certified copy of Baldwin's police record was filed in Supreme Court, showing that Baldwin had been arrested 69 times, convicted twice on burglary and robbery charges and fined in police court on six occasions.

That is the story of how one criminal has made our processes for criminal justice in Missouri look ridiculous—including our Supreme Court.

The prediction in the above comment that Chief Justice Blair's dissent might send the case to the court en banc has been fulfilled, with the result as stated. The opinion granting Baldwin a new trial was written by Judge Graves, with all the Judges concurring except Judge Walker. In his opinion Judge Graves severely criticizes Assistant Circuit Attorney Bowcock who prosecuted Baldwin "for unfair conduct in the trial." And the trial court is charged with reversible error in admitting the testimony of a police photographer who identified a photograph of Baldwin as one kept in the Bertillon record room at police headquarters. "Poisonous evidence" is Judge Graves' characterization of that testimony.

Judge Graves, of course, knows the law; knows what is proper and improper testimony; knows what is a reversible error. His opinion, supported as it is by the entire bench, save and excepting Judge Walker's dissent, is the law, authentic, binding and doubtless correct. But while it may have been improper to let the jury know that Baldwin's photograph was in the Bertillon gallery we insist that the photograph of a man who has been arrested 69 times and twice convicted of burglary and robbery belongs in the Bertillon collection. Anyhow we would not offer Baldwin's mug for a place in Valhalla, or the Pantheon, or the Academy of Immortals. Famous though he was as the hero of a cause célèbre Sylvester Baldwin's aura of distinction is aske, soiled and malodorous.

DOGS AND THE VEST FAMILY.

Dogs, like republics, are capable of ingratitude. In his famous eulogy of the dog Senator Vest of Missouri there is no suggestion of this fault, but the Senator's son, Alexander Vest, knows about and admits it.

A dog has bitten him. He, a Vest, had to go to a doctor and be treated because a dog with rabies bit him. Moreover, the same dog bit his daughter and his grandson, also Vesta. The family lives in Kansas City, where dogs are as numerous and pestiferous as they are in all cities. People get them as pups, when they are cute, and when they grow up they are turned out on the community. There is nothing to cut about them then, and whereas his father idealized the dog, Alexander Vest says that in cities particularly it is an infernal nuisance.

So the long and close attachment between dogs and the Vest family is ended. It was a beautiful attachment. Indeed, its cradle is one of the classics. Senator Vest said:

The one absolutely unselfish friend man can have in this selfish world, the noble and courageous character that can do if he has him, timid, bickering parents who feared to let him have a mind of his own, and applied the rod regularly while he was developing in his boyhood! There is no doubt that training of the latter kind would have had a demoralizing effect on his future courage and conduct.

Parents should heed the example of the older Lindberghs, when training their children.

THE DRIFT AT GENEVA.

Japan's sudden change of front regarding the British proposals for limiting the size and armament of battleships has dimmed the aspect of things at Geneva. At first siding with the United States in opposition to reopening agreements reached at the Washington conference, Japan explains her reversal on the ground that the British proposals are entitled to a hearing by virtue of the fact that their adoption would reduce naval costs and, therefore, reduce the burden of taxation.

That, of course, is a vital consideration. Such explanation, however, to be acceptable to American public opinion, should be supplemented with a statement showing approximately the economy that would result by the adoption of the British suggestions. So far as the United States is concerned, our representatives at Geneva say the proposed changes would entail a heavy expense by compelling us to scrap our guns which are of larger caliber than that fixed by the British recommendations. So the economy argument does not apply to us. Conceivably, though, we might be persuaded at least to discuss the question if Great Britain and Japan support their motion with a bill of convincing particulars as to the savings that would follow.

Such particulars would, indeed, have to be convincing. The United States did most of the sacrificing under the agreements of the Washington conference. To be sure, we were, relatively, able to do that. Further, if we had not done it, if we had not given that evidence of good faith, the Washington conference would have been a failure. But we are in no sacrificial mood now, and nothing short of overwhelming proof as to the benefits to accrue could induce us to play that role again.

Since unanimous consent is required to bring a question formally before the conference, and since our representatives, uninfluenced by Japan's action or explanation, sturdy refuse to debate the proposition, the proceedings at Geneva appear to have reached an impasse. In the circumstances the suggestion of Japan that the conference recess is adroitly in order. Adjournment with nothing done and in a spirit of hopelessly irreconcilable viewpoints would be almost calamitous. Such conclusion does not impend, but the conference is drifting in that direction.

MORE ABOUT JOHN GOODMAN.

When John Goodman came home from Denver, where he had won the Transmississippi golf championship, he found himself the hero of Omaha. The Mayor and a great crowd of his townsmen were at the station to meet him, and among other things they told him is that he is to have an education. A fund for this purpose has been subscribed by the people of Omaha.

There are some stout hearts in this world, and one of them beats in the breast of John Goodman. When Omaha set out to find out about him she learned what is good for all of us to know. She found out why John, who made his first tournament in St. Louis last year, had to come here on a freight train. It was because he is the eldest of nine children whose mother is dead and whose father has abandoned them. John is the head of the family, and what he and his brothers have made as caddies has gone to the support of the family. Maybe that is the reason John has no nerves on the golf course. He has already experienced everything that can happen, and therefore hasn't anything to expect. He is rid of the usual apprehensions. It is wonderful to be like that at 18, and John is like that. His is the perfect golf temperament. Probably most of us would play better golf had we shouldered John's problems when we were young and raised eight little brothers and sisters on what a caddy can make.

MME. SCHWIMMER.

In a country where Jane Addams is classed as a dangerous person, is it any wonder that a woman like Rosika Schwimmer should be denied citizenship? Mme. Schwimmer is the person who organized the idealistic Ford peace ship whose purpose was to get the boys out of the trenches by Christmas. She is therefore a pacifist, and pacifists are suspect. Aside from this heresy, Mme. Schwimmer has other advanced ideas on political and economic questions.

To these ideas Fred J. Schlotfeldt, naturalization director at Chicago, took exception. He also took exception to Mme. Schwimmer's declaration of herself as an atheist in a radio lecture, though neither Mme. Schwimmer nor anyone else ever had any idea that religious belief was a requirement for citizenship in this country.

Mme. Schwimmer may not feel deeply aggrieved. She has learned by this time that she is simply another victim of a prevailing phobia which, curiously enough, has manifested itself frequently against members of her sex. It even operated against a person of such distinguished American ancestry as Charlotte Anita Whitney of California, and but for the last-minute reprieve by the Governor, she would have sent her to prison. It acted to prevent Mme. Koltantay, Soviet Minister to Mexico, from passing through this country on her way to her post, as though her very presence would be a contamination. It operated against Countess Karolyi and against Little Anna Lerner. This phobia functions whenever someone appears whose mind is not cut in the conventional mode.

Thus Mme. Schwimmer is only one of the many victims of an intellectual despotism that has taken hold here, and that penalizes all who do not conform to officialdom's ideas of what should be believed. Russia in the darkest days of the Romanoffs was not quite as silly as that.

CAN YOU BLAME US?

Secretary Wilbur, in a speech before the New York Christian Endeavor Conference, related a story he had heard about a Chinese village which had been despoiled by bandits until nothing was left. The inhabitants of the village then held a consultation and decided they had no means of maintaining their food supply. So one and all trooped down to the river in a body and committed suicide.

If Secretary Wilbur, who is in constant touch with China and things Chinese in connection with naval operations, believes such a yarn as this and actually tells it in public, one can hardly blame the remainder of us who believe that rats are a delicacy in China; that all Chinese are inscrutable; that the Chinese do everything backward; that the quickest route to China would be a hole through the earth, and that the Chinese kill their girl babies.

It seems that summer also has hopped off.

From The Brooklyn Eagle.

CANADA'S second protest against the order preventing Canadian residents from crossing the border into the United States for daily work is well founded. The order contravenes a long-established practice. It is a belated legalistic interpretation of the 1924 immigration act, which was never intended to stop people who live in Windsor, Canada, and work in Detroit, Mich., from going to and from their daily tasks.

If this was at all necessary to put a stop to this practice because of abuses it would have sufficed to correct the abuses. The Canadian Government stands ready to cooperate in every way.

There is no common sense reason why we need to interfere with some 5000 long-time Canadian residents who have been crossing the border daily for years and who will be unable to get the quota visas which we now demand.

ENFORCEMENT—THIRD DEGREE.

HE newspapers carried reports of testimony given by Maj. August Heise, Assistant Prohibition Administrator for the New York district, in a trial which is now in progress in the court of Federal Judge John C. Knox. According to these reports, Maj. Heise admitted using third-degree methods on one Albert Briggs, "to obtain a confession that would implicate prohibition agents."

Maj. Heise, stocky, stout and stern-voiced, testified without emotion that he had ordered some of his men to tie Briggs' arms and legs and then to tie a towel tightly around his head. He calmly described the towel feature as a "Chinese method of punishment." The only caution he had given his men, he said, was that neither the towel nor the ropes should be tied so tightly that they would stop circulation. Referring to the towel to Briggs' head, Maj. Heise said:

"I told him that if he did not tell the truth I would twist it."

This is an astonishing story. Perhaps it represents an isolated case. There is no evidence, of course, that "Chinese methods of punishment" are in common use in the prohibition service. Nevertheless it is fair to remark that there is something about the prohibition law which seems to breed astonishing methods of enforcement with great ease. We have now had the admission that the Government employs "under-cover" men, the admission that it cannot hope to enforce the law without them, the admission that it has operated "Government speak-easies" and the admission (by Gen. Andrews) that 875 prohibition agents had been found corrupt and tired from the service.

The man who sold him the line did not think that he might buy the store; For purchased made anywhere would sell for spirits brave If others sold as barbers sell when I shave a shave.

When I fare forth to buy a tie, no clerk suggests a shirt, And selling grass seed, no one thinks to sell a load of dirt; The nearest to the barber's line was when I bought some mail.

But that was real solicitude—hence, not the fault of the fault.

I bought some pictures for the wall, a sofa for the floor,

The man who sold him the line did not think that he might buy the store;

For purchased made anywhere would sell for spirits brave

If others sold as barbers sell when I shave a shave.

What puzzles us is why they marry because of their artistic temperaments and then get a divorce for the same reason.

Who can remember when the expression "He passed out" did not mean he was dead?

Too Proud to Take Aid, She Kills 5 Children and Self

World Stops When Poverty Descends Suddenly, Hand in Hand With Husband's Death, Upon Weary Mother.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK, June 29.—Theodore Freeman had little difficulty earning a comfortable income. His wife, Marie, took it as a matter of course. There was enough for the nice things of life. The five children, from James, 11 years old, to Theodore Jr., 11, were well dressed. The home was pleasant. The family luxuries ranged from a radio set to an eight-cylinder car.

And then, mocking their assumption of security, trouble descended suddenly three months ago. A trolley car and an automobile collided in Woodside one night. It was a paragraph for the newspapers—and the end of the world for the frightened family in Whitestone. Freeman, a stock salesman for a Wall street firm, lived long enough to spend $2000 in hire of special doctors and nurses. There was no insurance.

Mrs. Freeman, an intelligent, sensitive woman of 32, appeared to stand up bravely under the grief and worry. Until last Monday evening she struggled to carry on, determined to support herself and the children, too proud to call for the aid her husband's brother Masons would have extended.

Moves Into Little Home. That day she had established her little brood in a new home, the lower floor of a two-family frame house in Whitestone. It was a shabby place, taken because the rent was $25 a month. For a week she and the older children, as well as their friends and former neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Dawson of Auburndale, Queens, had cleaned and scrubbed and painted the four rooms.

But when they had done their best, the improvement was pitifully small. Ugliness beat upon her eyes and sapped her courage. She had been thrust back to an environment she thought she had escaped years before. Her childhood in Allentown, Pa., had been that of an orphan. She knew the full horror of dependence and its shadow hung over her children.

At nightfall she made up her mind the struggle was not worth while. As the younger children tumbled over the floor in play, she began writing a letter to Mr. and Mrs. Dawson. They came in before she had finished, chattering of inconsequential things, deliberately bent upon cheering her. And she was determined they should not know her despair. The two women put the children to bed. They and Dawson chatted throughout the evening.

The guests left shortly after 10 p.m. Mrs. Freeman took up the letter and began where she had left off. "You have just gone, as I write this," she said. Near the close she added: "I want our bodies cremated and the ashes placed with those of Theodore."

She wrote a second letter addressed to a sister-in-law in Chicago. Upon a sofa, in five neat piles, she placed the garments she wanted the bodies of the five children to be clothed in in the morning. She closed all windows and opened the jets of a gas stove in the kitchen. She tiptoed into the bedroom and crept into bed with the baby, James.

The six bodies were found early yesterday morning when Joseph Nusbaum, who lives on the first floor, traced the odor of gas to the quarters of the new tenants and called a policeman. The door was forced. Windows were thrown open. An ambulance and a police crew rushed to the house. In a suit case upon the floor the policeman found two small covered bandages. The canaries in them were alive—the only living things in the place.

Neighbor Tells Her Story. The letters Mrs. Freeman had written were not made public, but Dawson told her story last evening.

After Freeman's death, seven weeks ago, some of his relatives in Chicago invited her to bring the children to them. It was her assumption the children would be provided for without having to leave her. She got together her household furnishings and moved out. Her experience in Chicago was unhappy. The sister-in-law, Miss Ruth Freeman Dawson, says he was given to understand, could do nothing to do except place the children in an institution. It was suggested Mrs. Freeman could support herself by keeping a boarding house.

"Well things didn't go right out in Chicago," said Dawson, "so she came back here. The trip out and could have help from a Kansas City Lodge of Masons, of which Freeman was a member, but she wouldn't even ask for it."

Dawson said he already had arranged to have the six bodies cremated.

"Get this right," he added. "There is not any dependence about the cremation even. She wouldn't like that. Her little jewelry and personal effects will pay all the bills."

Exonerated in Double Killing.

Alfred Gulich, Terminal Railroad Association special officer who shot and fatally wounded John Moran, 35 years old, and Arthur Long, 19, of Madison, when he found them trying to open a freight car in the Venice yards Saturday night, was exonerated yesterday by a Madison County Coroner's jury.

LOW BIDS FOR REPAVING

WASHINGTON TOTAL $219,960

Offers for Work Between Fourth and Eighteenth Street Exceed City's Estimate.

Bids opened yesterday by the Board of Public Service for the construction of seven streets and one alley totaled $264,040.85. The low bids let in three contracts for reconstructing Washington boulevard, from Fourth street to Jefferson avenue with smooth granite blocks, cemented with an asphalt filler aggregated $219,960.75. Of this sum $74,550 will be paid out of the bond issue fund.

Joseph Kest & Sons were the low bidder for the first two sections from Fourth to North boulevard, their bid being $115,931, 8 per cent above the city's estimate. On the second section from Twelfth to Eighteenth street their bid of $72,623.50 was 7 per cent over. The low bid of the Independent Quarry & Contracting Co. of $71,406.25 was 5 per cent under the estimate for the section from Eighteenth to Jefferson. The board will consider letting the contracts to Kest & Sons Friday.

The low bid of $62,881.75 for the widening and repairing of Wanda avenue by taking 3 feet off each side and increasing the width to 36 feet, was submitted by the Cram & Scott Construction Co. Other bidders opened yesterday were for the improvement of Wanda avenue, from Gravois to Schoenau avenue, $24,301.80; Eichelsberger street, from Kingshighway boulevard to Macklin avenue, $37,286.20; Macklin street, from Broadway to Eleventh street, $14,375.50; alley between Taft avenue, Ellengwood avenue, Gravois road and Morganford road, $6100.

GRIEF OVER POISONING OF DOG

CAUSES DENTIST TO KILL SELF

Nebraska Man Who Lived Alone

Had Been Morbid Since Death of His Pet.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.—BASSETT, Neb.—Dr. E. C. Koons, a dentist here many years, died yesterday, and it is because someone poisoned his favorite dog. Koons was found dead in his home, where he lived alone, with a rifle bullet through his head. Koons had not been seen all day, and search for him in the evening resulted in finding the body.

Koons had made much of the pet in his loneliness, and expressed deep grief over its loss. Friends say he had been brooding over the loss of the dog ever since its death, and often had remarked that he wished he had been poisoned instead of the animal.

Although he had been practicing here 11 years, little was known of his relatives because of his residence. He has a son in El Paso, Tex.

WOMAN MARRIED IN 1916

ADmits BIGAMY OF 7 YEARS

Arrested After Quarrel Between Husband; Had Lived With First Mate Recently.

A woman who admits she was married to one man 11 years ago and to another almost seven years without a divorce from either, was arrested last night after a quarrel between the two men in the 4200 block of Magnolia avenue. She admitted she married Fred W. Busekru, a local truck chauffeur, at 217 Taylor, Okla., on June 17, 1916, and on Aug. 21, 1920, married Jacob Streib, a conductor of 5202 South Compton avenue.

She explained that she was under the impression Busekru had obtained a divorce. Recently she left Streib and was living with Busekru and his sister at the Tower Grove avenue address.

General Optimism in Japan Over Arms Conference.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, June 29.—Notwithstanding the present apparent differing views of the three delegations at the Geneva naval limitation conference, there is general optimism here that an agreement among the Powers will finally be reached. The reaction to the conference of the vernacular newspapers and the public, however, has been somewhat apathetic.

Both the foreign office and the Navy Department have expressed hope that the differences will be ironed out. The Navy Department has reiterated its sincere desire for an agreement on auxiliary war vessels and has indicated willingness to discuss capital ships as a concession through which such an agreement could be reached sooner. It is understood there will be no objection to reducing the tonnage of capital ships.

The Ohio says editorially that the British propose to reopen the question of capital ships surprised Japan and America, and that America objects with good reason. But, it adds, "the proposed limitation of tonnage and gun caliber, even if the age limit is rejected, will prove beneficial to America and Japan."

Reformer Lays Flight to Plot.

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., June 29.—William L. King, anti-Saloon League worker who yesterday was reported missing at Pittsburg, was last seen in Moines, June 28, the day before his flight by airplane. He declared he would return to Pittsburg by train late today, and that on his arrival there he would make a statement of startling nature with reference to the "blackmail" plot and his flight.

22-YEAR FIGHT FOR FREEDOM

Murderer Whose Death Sentence Was Commuted Seeks Pardon.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Vic Perovich, Rochester, N. Y., barber, who under a recent Supreme Court ruling must serve a life sentence at Leavenworth penitentiary for a murder committed 22 years ago in Alaska, is continuing a fight for his liberty. He has filed with the Department of Justice an application for pardon.

Originally sentenced to death, Perovich was given a commutation by President Taft and sent to prison for life. Several years ago through habeas corpus proceedings, he gained his liberty on the contention that the President had exceeded his authority. The Supreme Court ruled it within the chief executive's right. Now Perovich seeks a complete pardon.

Traffic Resumed After Slide.
By the Associated Press
SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, June 29.—Traffic over the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad was resumed yesterday with the release of one of five trains tied up by slides and washouts in Price Canyon, 159 miles east of here, following torrential rains. Meanwhile, approximately 20 motor cars carrying tourists and others were presumed to have been lost in the canyon with the prospect of having to stay a day or so. Reports to the State Highway Commission said it would require several months to repair the damage. Roads and basements at Helper, Utah, were flooded, and silt was two to four feet deep in some of the houses and stores. Five houses at Castle Gate were demolished and bridges on the midland trail were washed out.

ELEVEN LOSE JOBS, ONE RESIGNS IN STATE HOSPITAL SHAKEUP

Extravagance at Nevada (Mo.) Institution Disclosed by Audit, Investigator Says.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEVADA, Mo., June 29.—The shakeup that had been expected at State Hospital No. 3 occurred last night and is expected to be continued as the audit of the institution progresses. T. N. Dunphy, George Niles and Mrs. Mattie Peck are making the audit under the direction of Col. W. P. Fulker son of St. Joseph, chairman of the State Eleemosynary Board.

Col. Fulker son said: "Nothing wrong has been uncovered—just extravagance. We are going to check every department thoroughly and it may require two weeks to do the work. We are going to decrease the army of employees so we can have money enough to feed and care for the patients."

The changes made at the institution are as follows: Steward L. M. Wilson relieved, T. N. Dunphy appointed acting steward; Emma Voss, matron, succeeded by Mrs. Mattie Peck, appointed acting matron; Carl Wilson, secretary, relieved, George E. Niles, appointed acting secretary. Col. Fulker son also dismissed nine employees.

Steward Wilson has been regarded as the closest man to Gov. Barker of Southern Mo. Miss Voss resigned as matron yesterday afternoon and declined a transfer to some other State hospital.

WOMAN MAKES NON-STOP FLIGHT RECORD WITH HUSBAND

British Flyer, Planning England-U. S. Round Trip, Arrives From Germany.

By the Associated Press
CALSOT, England, June 29.—Capt. F. P. Courtney, British aviator, who is planning a round-trip flight from England to New York, arrived last night in a Dornier-Wall all-metal plane after a non-stop flight from Friedrichshafen, Germany.

He covered the distance of 800 miles in 9 1/2 hours an encountered strong headwinds and headwinds.

The aviator was accompanied by his wife, who thus accomplished the longest non-stop flight by any woman.

Novelist Arrested for Alimony.

By the Associated Press
NEW YORK, June 29.—Charles Fulton Oursler, playwright and novelist, was arrested today and taken to the sheriff's office, where he was being held to file a bond of $20,000 to insure the payment of $10,000 annual alimony awarded to Mrs. Rose K. Oursler, for the support of herself and two children. Mrs. Oursler, who was formerly Rose Keller Karger of Savannah, Ga., complained that the editor was leaving for Europe Friday.

"HOW MUCH will you allow on my used car?"

THIS IS a commonly asked question, since most new car sales now involve the trading-in of the purchaser's used car.

Theoretically, you can get almost any allowance you want, if you are willing to buy a new car whose price has been arranged to permit an excessive trade-in offer.

Practically, the largest allowance is not the best deal for you unless the new car has been priced to give you full new car value, without regard to trade-in.

When you trade-in your present car for a new car, remember that after all you are making a purchase—not a sale. So be guided by these basic facts:

- 1 Your used car has only one fundamental basis of value; i.e., what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.
- 2 Your used car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.
- 3 The largest allowance offered is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not.
- 4 An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.
- 5 First judge the merits of the new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in allowance offered on your used car.

WORLD C. OF C. TOLD ABOUT ROADS IN U. S.

John N. Willys, Auto Manufacturer, Gives Information to Stockholm Convention.

By the Associated Press.
STOCKHOLM, June 29.—The problems of trade barriers, international letters of credit, good roads and double taxation were discussed by the International Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

John N. Willys, American automobile manufacturer, gave the Highway Traffic Committee an account of what is being done in the United States in the construction and maintenance of good roads.

The committee, presided over by Roy D. Chapin, Detroit, reported unanimously against oppressive taxation of motor vehicles and in favor of devolving motor taxation solely to the maintenance and improvement of roads.

The Finance Committee, headed by Frank L. Kent, New York banker, agreed to recommend three kinds of international letters of credit, but Germany and Hungary suggested only two. The committee urges the adoption of revocable, irrevocable and guaranteed credit letters, the international medium for banking checks. Germany and Hungary would certify both revocable and irrevocable letters, thus doing away with the third type.

DETROIT PREPARING TO HONOR LINDBERGH

Naming of Street for Flyer and Marking His Birthplace There Are Proposed.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., June 28.—The first recognition Detroit proposes for Col. Lindbergh, son of a Detroit school teacher, is to change the name of Forest avenue to Lindbergh avenue. In Forest avenue, West, stands the old home where Col. Lindbergh was born 25 years ago.

The proposal to change the street name already has been approved by the City Council. A meeting of Forest avenue residents has been called to consider the plan. It is the hope of the committee that the change can be effected before Col. Lindbergh comes to Detroit.

It is proposed also to mark the flyer's birthplace with a bronze tablet.

Besides luncheons, receptions and the like, a parade over the city's more prominent thoroughfares to give all an opportunity to see Col. Lindbergh, and a river fest with airplanes and fireworks are to be given when he arrives here.

In all these arrangements plans have been made to honor his mother also.

Shain by Chicago Gunmen
CHICAGO, June 29—Gunmen in a touring car killed one man and wounded two others early today. Diego Attolomonte, 10 years old, was nearly decapitated by bullets. His companion, Otto Pupill, 28, is reported dying. The other wounded man was Charles Brown, 40, a watchman for the surface lines, kidnapped after he had been dropped to the sidewalk by the gunmen.

D. C. STEPHENSON PROMISES
INDIANA POLITICAL EXPOSE

Imprisoned Kansanman Says He Has Been Double-Crossed and Is Ready to Talk.

By the Associated Press
MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., June 29.—D. C. Stephenson, former Grand Dragon of the Indiana Ku Klux Klan, now serving a life sentence here for murder, has announced through his attorney that he is willing to talk freely about Indiana politics. The statement, given out by his attorney, Robert Moore, follows:

"Reports of the action of the Indiana State Board of Charities is a whitewash of the officials of the State prison. I have been double-crossed for the last time and I am ready to talk. You can tell Prosecutor Remy of Marion County, that I have numerous things that I am prepared to talk about freely and they are matters which I believe will start a much needed cleanup in Indiana politics."

Stephenson has asked for a 50-day parole in which to perfect his appeal from the conviction of murder and has said that the warden and other officials of the State prison blocked his efforts.

LANDS LOADED AIRPLANE ON ONE WHEEL SAFETY

Daniel R. Robertson Accomplishes Difficult Feat After Mishap at Lambert Field.

Landing a loaded airplane on one wheel without damage to the plane was accomplished Sunday at Lambert-St. Louis Field by Daniel R. Robertson of the Robertson Aircraft Corporation, it was learned today.

Taking off in a Curtiss Oriole with two passengers, Robertson lost a landing wheel which rolled ahead of the plane as it left the ground. Frank H. Robertson, in another plane, took after the flyer and by holing up a wheel which had been taken along indicated to him that his plane was disabled.

Robertson nodded his head to indicate he understood and a few minutes later landed his ship, making it run along on one wheel until it lost speed and landed on its axle. Neither of the passengers was aware of the ship's plight until after the landing.

Von Tirpitz Tells Them U. S. Would Accept Only Hindenburg's Denial as Truth.

By the Associated Press
BERLIN, June 29.—To mark the eighth anniversary of the signing of the treaty of Versailles the students of Germany yesterday inaugurated nation-wide academic demonstrations in protest against "German guilt."

The Berlin students held their meeting in the Prussian upper house, the principal speakers being Prof. George Karo of Halle and Admiral Von Tirpitz, who emphatically denied such guilt.

Von Tirpitz said among other things, "America expects unequivocal rejection of the war guilt lie, but not through party politicians. It must be done by an honorable man, standing above party, such as President Von Hindenburg, who is personally grata to America."

THE WOMAN OF IT

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall

"LUCKY."

BY simple signs, yet certain, you may know them. The men whose trust is in their vision true. Deep in their beings burn the lights to show them. Long unbroken lands; for them, ways open through. There are rewards of which no earthly losing can be, although blind fate decree life's end. Always unsullied paths are theirs; in choosing the trackless trails, they win triumphs as friend. Of such a wanderer, whose rainbow wake revealed An ocean's limits (lesser than his own!) And bright heart-warming colors long concealed In the gray sheet-fog he defied alone. Reckless—when only recklessness availed; Lucky—the kind of luck that never failed.

MILES TIMOTHY O'MEARA.

CUT-THROAT competition by working wives is denounced again by "a young, unmarried woman badly in need of work," who writes to The Evening World. She tells of reading "help wanted" ads which specify "young married women preferred," and she implies that for this gentleman's preference there can be no legitimate reason.

The advertisement she refers to is interesting to the point of sheer oddity. As every woman downtown knows, there are still many offices where the girl who works and wishes to keep on with her job dare not wear her wedding ring and must keep her marriage a guilty secret. "Why the discrimination anyhow?" demands The Evening World's correspondent. We echo her, but we think discrimination still works against, not in favor of the fifty-fifty wife, despite her increasing numbers.

We repeat the fact of a woman's marriage or celibacy should not affect her status on the job. Still, if the employer really is learning to prefer "young married women" there is but one reason. More than one has been suggested by Miriam Simons Lenck, an expert in the problems of women's employment. In her book, "Fields of Work for Women," she writes:

"The married woman once she has overcome the prejudice frequently existing against married women working at all, usually makes a better employee."

In the first place, the sense of instability is gone. She is no longer a disturbing force among the men of the staff. They can treat her as an equal and give her honest credit for her work without being afraid that their praise will be misunderstood. And she cannot have been married very long without discovering that being too sensitive is a great waste of time and that half the remarks which she might have taken as slight were well meant advice to help her to success. In other words, if she has made a success of marriage she has learned that she is not nearly as important a person as she considered herself, and that criticism for a mistake is frequently as impersonal as criticism of a doer that sticks a peat that blots, or any other irregularity in the office machinery."

THE girl worker may not agree with Miss Lenck's analysis of the superior efficiency of the wife who works, but as for the latter's presence in the business world, it is now an established fact rather than a question open to argument. Married women continue, with increasing frequency, to collect, to promote, men and no protest by conservative men or disgruntled spinster aunts will check this economic movement. Even in our law-ridden land there is no law against it, and in nearly every instance there are good reasons for it.

To say that most wives work for spending money or to kill time is nonsense. Some do, but even so it's their own affair. The majority, however, work for some more important motive: to help care for members of their families without draining their husbands' purse, to create a home-building or child-educating fund, to express themselves in a way which they enjoy.

For a poppycock ales is the plan the the emperors who takes the bread out of the mouth of the same women. Precisely the same logic was once used by men to keep all women out of the business world. Yet because women forced their way into it men did not die of starvation brought on by unemployment. There was work enough for both sexes. Just as there will be work enough for the married and the unmarried women. The job is hers at last who does it best. Whether the job holder has or has not a marriage certificate is her own business—not that of either her employer or her fellow workers.

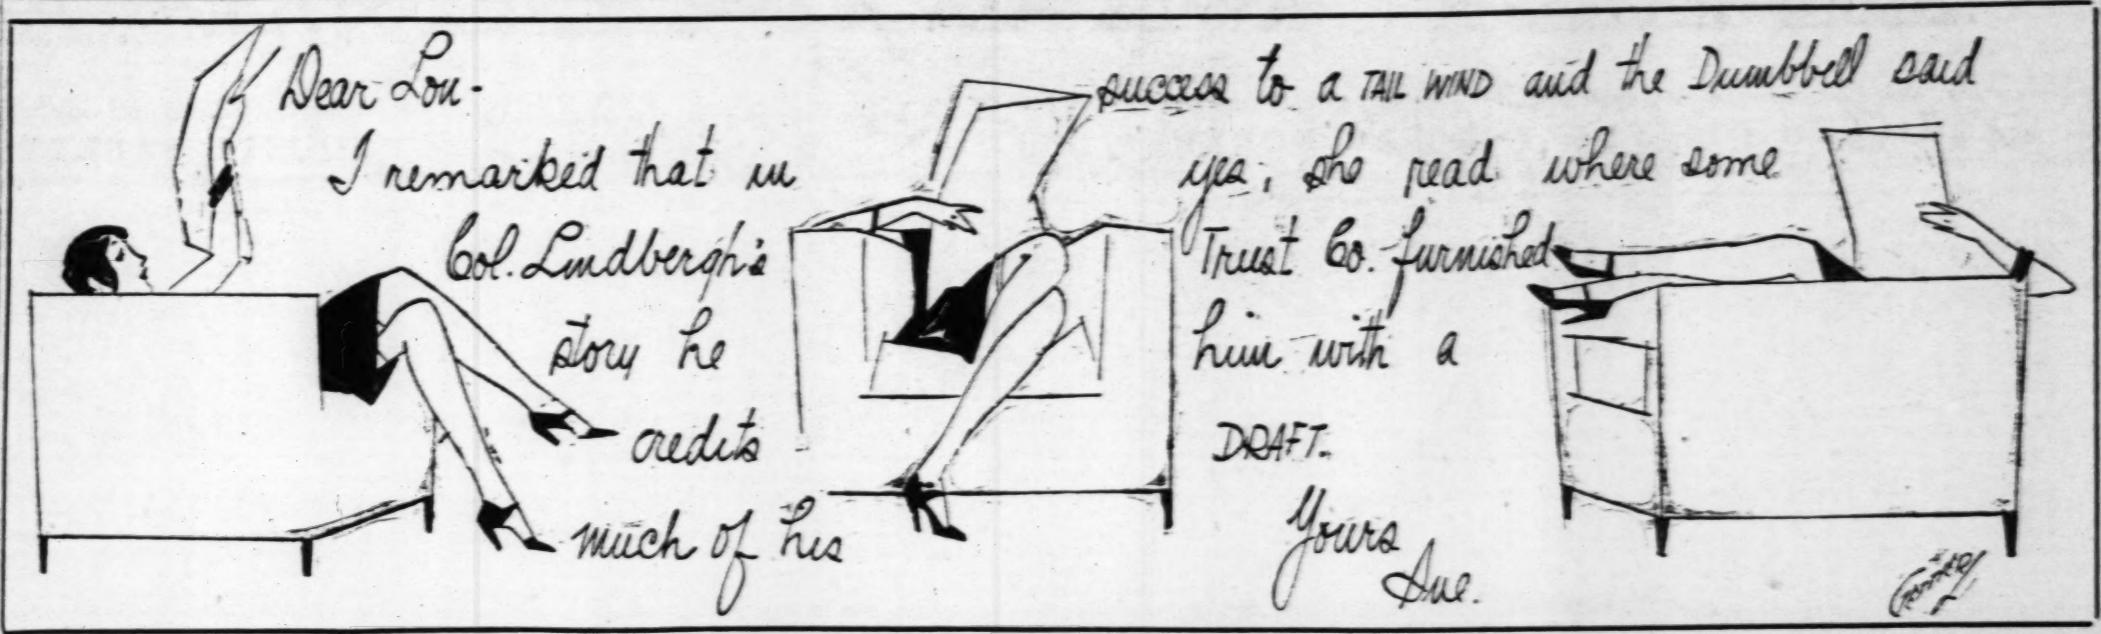

If they have a good clientele it should keep one woman busy and it is time enough to think of enlarging the business after she has its usefulness.

There is only one other such place I know of in New York City, but that is rather on a larger scale, as they consult with architects and builders on their plans. In addition, they put the client in touch with the right interior decorator and supervise the work of planning and furnishing from start to finish. It is undoubtedly a service for which there is tremendous need. The average man or woman who starts designing a home has usually no idea of how to accomplish the idea in there. The fulness of the idea is lacking. I would be interested to know how Alice Q. comes out.

Bowser Investigates

Suspicious things investigate
And do it ere it be too late.

—Bowser the Hound.

There sat Old Man Coyote grinning at him.

TUESDAY night CAME home early this afternoon thinking I would get in a nap before dinner, but just try if you are married. As soon as I came in the door Joan said, "I'm glad you're here while it's still light. You can put up the small birdcage dinner." I said, "What's the hurry?" I was tired, and Joan said, "Hurry! Do you realize we haven't heard a program since we moved here 10 days ago just because you're too lazy to put up the aerial?"

I said, "Just because we have a radio we needn't be listening in all the time," and Joan said, "Just because we have a kitchen stove I ought not to spend all my life cooking, either, but you were careful to have THAT hooked up the moment we moved in," and so I put up the aerial.

After we had dinner and put the baby to bed and washed the dishes I tuned on the radio, and I was getting some swell violin music; it was real artistic, I guess, on account of it making you want to cry, so I turned it off. I sat at Joan and I never saw such a face.

I said, "My mistake. I didn't know it would make you so sad," and I tuned the violin out and went looking for some jazz music, and I had to try 12 stations and travel about 3500 miles to get what I wanted, and even then it did not do any good, on account of Joan looking sadder than ever.

I said, "What's the matter?" and she said, "Nothing," and I said, "Yes, I know, but what's the matter?" and she said, "Oh, I'm just wondering if I will get to take the university extension courses. We can afford it unless I win that scholarship, and about 7000 others are trying for it. I guess."

I said, "I thought you were so darn sure you were going to win it," and she said, "Oh, I wasn't either. I just hoped so, that's all."

So I was feeling kind of blue myself on account of not earning more money for her, and I said, "Haven't we anything we can pawn?" and Joan said, "Not for $50, I'm afraid," and I said, "Maybe we could borrow it," and Joan said, "Oh, I wouldn't like to. We have so many bills coming due. When do you have to pay your insurance again?"

I said, "Why smart girl, Joan. That's the same reason I don't have time to buy a policy I don't know they were doing me a good turn hounding me to death, on account of it will be easy to borrow $50 on my insurance, and so the darn stuff does some good even though you are dead, which is a good joke on your wife."

The job is hers at last who does it best. Whether the job holder has or has not a marriage certificate is her own business—not that of either her employer or her fellow workers.

If they have a good clientele it should keep one woman busy and it is time enough to think of enlarging the business after she has its usefulness.

A Few Nursery Notes

By WANDA BARTON

THE pointer for today is: Unusual length in a suit does not justify an original bid of one in the absence of two quick tricks or the equivalent.

Yesterday's Hand.

Spades—A, Q, 10, 7, 5, 4, 2.

Hearts—7, 5, 2.

Diamonds—Q, J.

Clubs—J.

My answer slip reads:

No. 9—South (Dealer) should pass.

No. 10—South pass; West should bid three spades.

No. 11—South one heart; West pass; North should bid one spade.

No. 12—with a score of 10, after three passes; East should bid three spades.

My reasons in support of these declarations are:

No. 9—Dealer's choice lies within a pass and three spades. One spade would show two quick tricks, the hand does not contain them. Two spades would show ace-king-queen at the top of six spades, and the hand does not contain the king. Three spades would indicate seven tricks with spades the trump and might tempt the partner to overbid. The chances are that some one has a bid and that the type of the hand can be shown accurately by a subsequent bid.

No. 10—The difference between No. 10 and No. 9 is slight but distinct. Few text books differentiate between the two, with most hands it is too fine a point to justify a change of the bidding; but South has not been strong enough to bid the possibility exists should West pass—that East with considerable strength may not get a game-going hand. In a bid of three spades would not be criticized; in No. 10 a bid of three spades is advised, although a pass would not be criticized.

No. 11—The hand has normal support for South's hearts, but the length and strength of the spades justify a spade bid.

No. 12—The chances are that the high-card strength is about evenly divided among South, West and North. Needing but three odd for game, it is probable that it can be made. An adversary who does not bid originally is not apt to overcall three spades; so there is little probability that the bid will let the adversary into a game.

WHAT can be more delightful or absorbing than shopping for baby things? There are always new things to be found and valuable ideas to be gained that may be passed on to the stay-at-home who have no time to go out gleaning.

Up-to-date high chairs are now equipped with quilted pads. Silk is, of course, first choice, though there are soft cretonne and other coverings also to be found. The little Chinese looking and awfully comfortable Web babies are little warm things even in hot weather.

The soft embroidered Chinese and silk gowns were never as dainty and attractive as they are for this season.

The baby basket is still in use but it has changed somewhat.

There is the divided china bowl with soap dish to match that figures at bathing time. The little chifferon closet holds many things that are useful for the run-around is a little cane-seated arm chair that has music box under the seat which plays when the child sits down in the chair. The child will sit still as long as the music plays. The padded table on the padded board to lay on any table is used by most young mothers to wash baby on and is a great deal easier than to attempt to do it on the lap as it was formerly done.

One of the most attractive slumber robes is made of soft thick flannel, the lining of silk and a soft inner lining, the edges bound together with a three-inch satin ribbon. In the center there is a tall and slender bird keeping watch over the slumberer. The bird is of soft felt and is appliqued on. The bird is outlined with black that the child should be taken in hand by a dress, wise and sympathetic forewoman. Even the ablest foreman generally helpless and easily revert to the manager, who, feeling that the thing is not really his business, anyway, will probably be harder on her than is necessary.

The girl is bound to feel hurt and misunderstood and if the trouble happens a second time or she gets fired over it, there is a grave danger that her feelings of authority will become permanently embittered.

With the passage of time the adolescent becomes adult and her stormy feelings calm down. Unfortunately, her mental alertness is likely to disappear as well and she will tend to dig herself into the groove of one type of self-seeking and complaining, alternately if she is moved out of the white background.

The largest box is rather new and very convenient. It is a padded box with hinged lid three-quarters of a yard long, eighteen inches wide and six inches deep. The box is covered with faintly chintz brocade or any material liked and is satin lined. The box holds a lot of things and is daintily fragrant with sachet. As baby gets big the box may still be useful to hold little dresses. The softest little knitted first TRICKLAND GILLILAN, the humorous lecturer who goes and comes for the multitudes, tells the story of an English clergyman who deemed it a part of his pastoral duties—in fact the principal part—to pay frequent and prolonged and tiresome domiciliary visits among his long-suffering parishioners, to inquire into their lives, to learn their secrets, to bestow counsel upon them, in short, to make a perambulating nuisance of himself.

There was one gentleman member of the flock who chafed exceedingly under the paternalistic ministrations of the reverend bumblebody. But he managed for awhile to keep his temper and, what was almost as great a task, to avoid revealing his true feelings.

Factory Girl

The Styles Were Different and the Boyish Figure Had Not

Were as Care-Free and Pleasure-Loving as the Moderns.

By ORTHA L. WILNER.

BARRING styles, the flapper of old Rome was strikingly like her sister of today. She, too, dyed her hair and rouged her cheeks; painted her eyes to look large and her brows to conform to the accepted mode; loved perfume and bright colors—especially red—and jewels. She, too, jested and petted and danced with many sweethearts. Though she married very young, frequently at the age of 14, divorce was quite as prevalent and as easy to obtain as it is today. So she was as gay and as carefree and amusement-loving as any modern girl.

Were these flappers of old Rome short, slender and pettish with boyishly straight figures and bobbed hair, like those of today? Far from it! The Juno-esque maidens, tall, fair and straight, with a walk like the Queen of the gods herself—that was a preferred type in the first century B. C. Only not too heavy! If a girl was overweight they liked her to the gladiators, reduced her diet, and put on a brassiere to make her slender "until she's a very red," as the slave says in the works of Terence. And like as not the brassiere was of leather instead of the more modern wool or silk.

How could a girl escape the consequences of a too generous build? Ovid, writer of the "Art of Love," recounts the reducing methods of the day in the following quotation:

The emotional force which is developed a proper outlet, says Benvingente, goes bad, and is the cause of every kind of evil. A very common symptom of the disappointed desire for color, life and affection is a burst of temper in the workroom. If this happens, it is imperative for the health of the girl's soul that she should be taken in hand by a firm, wise and sympathetic forewoman. Even the ablest foreman is generally helpless, and can only report to the manager, who, fearing that the thing is not really his business, anyway, will probably be harder on her than is necessary. This girl is bound to feel hurt and misunderstood, and if the trouble happens a second time or she fails over it there is a grave danger that her feelings toward authority will become permanently embittered.

With the passage of time the adolescent becomes adult and her stormy feelings calm down. Unfortunately, her mental alertness is likely to disappear as well and she will tend to dig herself into the groove of one type of work, sulking and complaining alternately if she is moved out of it. This is most likely to happen in factories where the tasks are most highly specialized.

At this time, however, the important factor of economic independence enters into her psychology. Stuart and Rowntree (The Responsibility of Women Wage Earners for Dependents), have shown that only 12 per cent of working women share responsibility for dependents. Of women over 24 only five per cent have the obligation to carry. Most of them live at home, pay two or three dollars a week to the family treasurer and keep about the same amount to clothe and amuse themselves. The opportunity to dress attractively (which the majority use with great effect) is of tremendous assistance to those who wish to find husbands.

Coronet Beef Hash.

To make good corned beef hash, put a pound of cooked corned beef through a meat grinder with about five boiled potatoes and a little onion to flavor. Mix well, add a dash of cayenne, and pat into lightly greased heavy iron skillet.

Cook over a low heat until a golden brown crust is formed, then place a pan or lid over the skillet and turn out. Slip the uncooked side into the skillet and cook.

When finished, place on a platter and garnish with parsley.

The "Alimony" Corset.

NEW YORK—One of the most smartly dressed women in New York astounded a clerk today by going into an exclusive shop and asking for an "alimony" corset. She finally explained that she wished a girl which gave the figure only the support required.

Of course, the shop had what she wanted and showed it at once as the demand was interpreted. It was an elastic step-in coming slightly below the normal waistline and laced at the side over the hips.

How to Launder Rayon.

To prove that rayon can be successfully laundered, one of our leading shops had two rayon garments washed, dried and ironed seven times. When compared with two new garments they were found quite alike.

The directions were carefully and implicitly followed. The use of hot water and hot irons was avoided.

A good flaked soap was dissolved in lukewarm water. They were thoroughly rinsed in cold water.

The garments were not rubbed nor twisted, but gently squeezed between the hands. When nearly dry, they were ironed with a medium hot iron.

How could a girl escape the consequences of a too generous build? Ovid, writer of the "Art of Love," recounts the reducing methods of the day in the following quotation:

The Romans liked their fair ones tall and straight.

"If you are short, sit down or better still lie down and cover your feet so that your lack of length cannot be appraised. If you are thin, wear thick, loose clothing, with shoulder pads; choose your garments to suit your complexion; do not gesture if your fingers are plump and your nails rough."

Miss Rome's beauty kit was a rare collection. White chalk or white lead or gypsum was the base for her facial make-up, with vegetable or mineral rouge on top. Chalk dyed crimson, or red grease paint, or ruddy nitre, And Ovid nonchalantly observes,

There Were Flappers in the Days of Old Rome

False hair, paint and powder, the girls of Rome used them all.

The white chalk was also used to clean white clothes and to whitewash the walls. The old scientist Pliny lists the names of a lot of cosmetics and their uses. Blue paint served to bring out the markings of veins in the temples and elsewhere. The eyes were circled with soot or powdered antimony to make them look larger; and with the same paints the eyebrows were prolonged until they met between the eyes—a fashion considered interestingly to the Romans.

The girls' faces must have looked much as do the extremes now, with their unnatural white and red—more garish spots of red—for then the materials for compounding different shades were decidedly limited. How excessive was the use of cosmetics is revealed by Martial, a satirist of the first century A. D., in his couplet:

You go to bed with most of your face.

In ointment boxes did you sleep—your face is not with you.

But 'neath your rouge jars. And Ovid nonchalantly observes,

"Whose cheeks blush not from nature, flush from art."

Beauty treatments were much in vogue, from mud packs to bread poultices and milk baths. The invention of the mud pack is attributed to the mythological Pandora. Even Poppaea, a first lady of the land, wife of the Emperor Nero, invented and gave her name to a species of bread dough facial pack. And she found her tub bath of asses' milk so necessary that a herd of asses had to be plucked penitently to supply the milk. Other devotees of asses' milk applied it as massage after the night's bread pack was removed, having the liquid rubbed onto the face with 700 strokes daily.

Other ingredients of facial treatments in the recipes of Pliny and Ovid are distillations from the ankles of bulls, the bodies of certain crocodiles reputed to live land only, on the most fragrant flowers, also from different kinds of stag and deer, from the goats, deer, and swan, Herculaneum ants, butter and honey in honey. Barley pap and honey vie with each other for first place as a base, to be mixed with lupines, white lead, myrrh, dried roses, and so forth. Here is a typical recipe:

2 lbs. ground barley.

10 eggs.

1-1/2 lb. pulverized stag's horns.

12 narcissus bulbs, rubbed fine.

1/2 Etruscan spelt and gum.

9 times as much honey as the bulk of the above materials.

"Whoever rubs herself with this ointment will have a skin smoother and more glowing than her own mirror," replied Pliny.

Yet Ovid says the opaque white grease used as a beautifier by his sweethearts was of such an offensive odor that he was more than once made sick.

Bought Wigs Shamelessly.

Among dark haired Mediterranean peoples, blonde hair was particularly prized. Of course many made the best of what nature gave them; but the rest tried to improve on nature with dyes or wigs. Blond or red wigs imported from Egypt were common, and were either worn over one's own hair or put on after shaving the head. Messalina, the bad wife of the good Emperor Claudius, wore a blonde wig.

The dresses were in loose, straight styles that hung to the ground, and were made of wool, linen or silk.

So Rome had her sheiks and shehzes—and she had Ovid to warn them thus: To the man,

Trust not too much the treacherous light of the lamp;

As fast with wine and night a woman is.

And to the maid:

Yes, use your cosmetics, but use them alone;

Send word you're asleep till the painting is done.

A N alert mind, ever open to conviction—ears and eyes awake to new ideas and impressions—yet full of common sense—she says:

"I would no more try to cure tooth trouble with a dentifrice than I would try to cure appendicitis by swallowing soda. Dear me! We had never heard of half these frightful tooth ills when I was a girl; we simply brushed our teeth twice a day and kept them clean!"

"My teeth are beautifully preserved. I have gone to the dentist twice a year ever since I can remember, and have used the same dentifrice since I was a girl."

Most people use the same dentifrice she uses. Most dentists recommend that same dentifrice. It is Colgate's Ribbon Dental Cream—designed by Colgate & Co. with the express purpose of doing the one thing which leading dental authorities agree a dentifrice must do—clean!

Colgate Dental Cream is made to clean teeth, and it cleans them better by the following modern method: As you brush, it breaks into a sparkling, bubbling foam; in this foam is calcium carbonate, a finely ground powder which loosens clinging food particles, and polishes all tooth surfaces. Next, this foam, in a detergent, washing wave, sweeps over teeth, tongue, gums, washing all surfaces, removing the very causes of tooth decay.

CHAPTER X.
AS THE STORY GOES.

As Lieut. Abraham Levy says goodbye to Miss Rose-Mary Murphy, warlike entertainer and nurse, as she returns to her work in a base hospital, he is perfectly sure that this is the best of all possible worlds. For is he not to meet her again in the States? Of course, there is a slight parental prejudice to be overcome before they can even think of marrying. But what is that in the face of the miracle which has brought them together repeatedly since the night he had by chance accompanied her at a Y hut entertainment, before going out one fearful night into No Man's Land, from which he had returned, a hero? Abie is ready to embark for home.

THEY came aboard the hospital ship at Brest in baskets, men without arms or legs, like babies in bassinets, wrecks to be taken back home, men who still smiled. But now and then as they cast a glance back towards France's shore, a strange, sad look came into their eyes. They were the "basket patients."

They came aboard on crutches with a leg gone, or a foot gone, or both feet gone—cut off during those mad swift moments when an amputation was safer than a slow attempt to cure—or shattered by pieces of high explosive shell.

They came aboard with parts of their faces gone, with queer bits of flesh hanging to their countenances—the first processes of the wonderful art of plastic surgery which restores lost noses, cheeks or even whole faces.

They came aboard with queer little, hacking coughs—men whose lungs had been burnt away by poisonous gases.

They came aboard, men outwardly normal but mentally deranged. Outside whole—inside addled. These were the shell-shocked victims of heavy artillery in warfare.

Able, watching all this from the rail, was saddened by it. He himself had very nearly lost one leg and he knew how quickly America would forget her wounded after the shouting and the acclaim once died.

He couldn't help being glad that he was going back home whole.

He turned away from the sight of the gangplank and scanned the dock in a faint hope that he might see Rose-Mary.

He had been ordered by telegraph to depart direct from Paris without reporting back to the hospital or to his outfit. He had telegraphed Rose-Mary at once, but she had written him that she would not be able to see him off.

They had corresponded every day, as they had agreed, and in her letters Rose-Mary had poured out her heart to him as he had to her.

"Oh, Abie," she had written him, "now that this war is over, we two are confronted by a struggle of our own. But it's going to come out all right, as the war did—I'm sure it is!"

Each of her letters he carried in his inner pocket, and he reread them again and again.

Now he cherished the latest snapshot she had sent of herself. It showed her dressed in her white nurse's uniform and she was smiling—smiling for him.

He had thought once when he received his orders that he would emulate the thousands of others who were bolting their regiments, absent without leave. He would go to her, and afterwards take the consequences.

It was being done by officers and enlisted men alike. When the armistice was signed there seemed to be a letdown in the iron discipline of war. Devil-may-care men walked away from their outfit and made for Paris. The French capital was filled with them.

But Able had a clean record. He didn't want to be smirched it. And he knew that, although Rose-Mary would not chide him for what he had done, she would not approve it, because she had a high sense of honor and duty.

So he gave up all hope of seeing her. He was reconciled to the fact that she would not be there when the ship sailed. Nevertheless he closely scanned the faces of the women who were lined on the dock, looking up at the soldiers.

One man was leaning far over the railing.

"Cherie!" he called, "I'm back for you. Don't worry! I'm back as soon as I'm out of the army. You must not forget me!"

As the man talked on, Able saw the girl he was addressing. She stood on the dock, a slim young thing, pathetically frail, lifting a tear-stained face. A damp little handkerchief showed in one hand; tears stood in her eyes; she was too moved to answer. The trusting look on her face was tragic. Plainly she believed every word the fact that she had given that soldier everything.

"—And then we'll go back to America and have a nice little home, see?"

There was a stir aboard the vessel. The dock quivered under Able's feet. He realized that the ship was moving gently. Instinctively he threw a last glance over the crowd below—a quick, searching glance in a foolish hope that he might yet see Rose-Mary. But he saw none that looked like her—only French women and a few British nurses, who waved their handkerchiefs when they weren't pressing them to their eyes.

The soldier who had been talking to the French girl was waving to her now:

"Au revoir, cherie!"

"Adieu, mon ami!" Her voice had a sob in it, and a sudden dark despair spread over her face as she turned away. But instantly she wheeled and cried:

"I shall wait!"

"Don't worry! I'll be back!" called the man. "I swear I will!"

But Able knew he would not.

Many broken hearts were being left behind. And when this ship with its cargo of destroyed humanity reached America, there would be many others.

The boat was drawing further from the drab buildings which lined the dock.

The figures at the water's edge grew smaller—upturned faces merged together—became a mere indistinguishable mass of waving handkerchiefs. The soldier at Able's elbow turned and walked away.

Able watched him go with mingled emotions. His heart had gone out to that girl on the dock—there had been a certain tell-tale incredulousness about her final gestures when she saw the boat actually moving. She had doubted, even though she didn't want to doubt.

How different—how infinitely removed from such a relationship, his love for Rose-Mary!

He felt he was almost fortunate in not having to see her to say a last goodbye. She, too, would be leaving France soon, and would be with him in America. They would be reunited there. He was safe in her love, and she in his.

Their first meeting—the way love had come to them—the whole experience—they had never been a breath of the sordid in it. He had not sworn to love and cherish her always, nor had she told him that she could never love another. It was a thing which from the first both had taken for granted. He had told her he loved her, and she had told him that she loved him, but he had never asked her to marry him—that also was something understood between them from the first. Their souls and hearts and minds had been in perfect accord. The idea of marriage had come without their even thinking of it.

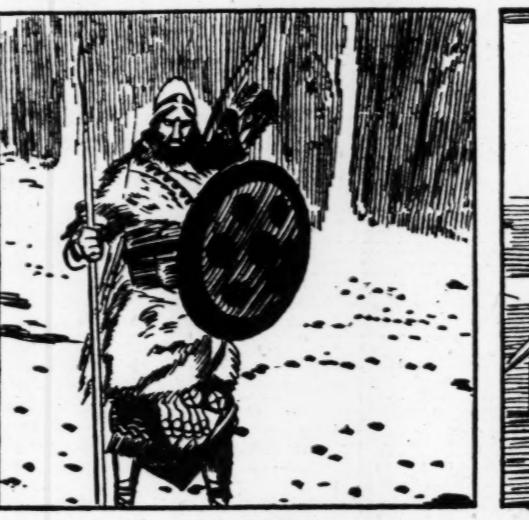

He could not remember when he had asked her to kiss him the first time. They had both been filled with the same desire and

The Greatest Story in the World—By Kor The Bible in Pictures

And Jacob said, Gather yourselves together, and hear, ye sons of Jacob; and hearken unto Israel your Father. Reuben, thou art my first born, my might, and the beginning of my strength, the excellency of dignity, and the excellency of power: Unstable as water, thou shalt not excel. Simeon and Levi are brethren; instruments of cruelty are in their habitations. O my soul, come thou not into their secret; Curse they anger, for it was fierce: I will divide them in Jacob, and scatter them in Israel. Judah, thou art he whose thy brethren shall praise; thy hand shall be in the neck of thine enemies; thy father's children shall bow down to thee. Judah is a lion's whelp. The sceptre shall not depart from Judah.

their lips had met—that was all. He loved her and expected to make his her wife—she loved him and expected to be his wife. That was all, and it was enough.

Had Able been a student of history he might have known that there is no greater love on earth than that which is born sometimes when two people meet each other, look into each other's eyes and without a word know at once the longing each has for the other.

Early writers used to think that once upon a time man and woman were one. That they were separated. And that since that time, each half has been trying to find the other. So there is nothing strange, perhaps, when through some good fortune these two halves meet and instinctively realize it.

Able might have dug into many philosophies, without being able to learn just what love is. Why he loved Rose-Mary, why she loved him.

Of course, she was the most beautiful, most desirable girl in the world. She had sympathy and understanding, she was intelligent and had a quick, though not an ironic wit. She was his ideal. He had never sat down and tried to decide just what his ideal of a woman was—whether she should be blonde or brunette, whether she should be tall or short or slender or plump, or how she should think. He had merely realized when he met Rose-Mary that she was his ideal.

And now, walking slowly aft to the officers' quarters, he found himself thinking again what a wonderful thing it was.

Lying on a berth in his stateroom was a letter just left there by an orderly. A letter postmarked Amiens—a goodbye letter from Rose-Mary.

He opened it with fingers suddenly unsteady from emotion—read the hurried, tender lines with a great lift of his heart.

"Cheer up!" she wrote. "Everything's going to turn out all right—I know it is! A few more weeks and we'll be together again and your dad and mine will say yes—I'm sure they will. Don't let it prey upon you, dear, we'll find a way. We can't fail."

"Your own

ROSE-MARY."

Only a few more weeks....

Able turned to the porthole and looked out at the fast-fading shores of France. Of course they'd find a way! With such a girl to fight for and to fight for him. She was right—they couldn't fail! And with a heart suddenly lighter than it had been for days, he folded the letter and slipped it tenderly into his wallet.

berries slowly and press out the juice. Add one cupful of sugar to each quart of juice, bring to a boil, pour quickly into jars or bottles and seal.

Select whatever berries you prefer — strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, currants are all good and a combination of currants and raspberries is delicious.

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association) REPLAIN YOU. — If there was an agreement about the amount of rent, he would not be entitled to use it.

READER. — In Missouri one under age of 16 does not have a fishing license. In Illinois, a minor may not have a fishing license for fishing.

RENTER. — The father can be compelled to support a child, if he can claim any interest in the former husband's home, as he may be against the safe to have a bank account or safe in a fictitious name, if used for a fraudulent purpose.

ROBERT. — Your father can recover damages for compensation he did not receive for the work he did to compel the man to give him his old job.

R. C. W. — In our opinion, B. does not have to place A's name on the deed unless he has agreed to do so.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given, or at the clinics of any of the larger hospitals in the city, where treatment may be made free of charge. Or, if you prefer, consult a private physician.

MRS. MARY G. — It would be impossible to determine the cause or cause of such trouble without a thorough examination, and then proper treatment for relief and cure could be advised.

MOTHER. — We would suggest that you write to the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, 200 North Euclid Avenue, for the diagnosis and service as they are teaching, as well as treating and caring for crippled children.

WORRIED. — We advise an examination of your back at the Dispensary or City Hospital unless it is contagious.

8 JURORS CHOSEN
FOR BIRGER GANG
MURDER TRIAL

Jury Expected to Be Completed Today at Marion, Ill., to Try Millich and Gowen for Killing Jones.

GHOSTS OF OLD FEUDS CALLED UP

"Are You Afraid of Charlie Birger?" One of Questions Prosecution Puts to All Veniremen.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MARION, Ill., June 29.—The epilogue to Williamson County's notorious five years of riot, turbulence, klan and anti-klan warfare and gang feuds is unfolding in the little red courthouse on the square here. Five years ago Williamson County was burying the score of men shot down in a riotous outbreak of a mine strike. Today, with another strike in its coal mines slowing up the economic life of the county, some of the same men who gathered around the Lester strip mine near Herrin, bitter against the strike breakers, sit in the court room here watching the selection of a jury to try the first murder case growing out of the Birger-Shelton gang feuds, that followed the strike and klan warfare.

The selection of juries to try the cases growing out of the mine rights ran into weeks. The selection of a jury to try Rado Millich and Eral Gowen for the murder of Ward ("Casey") Jones, a fellow Birger gangster, is proceeding with the same care in the same court room and before the same judge, Circuit Judge Hartwell, but in an entirely different atmosphere. The old passions have died down. Instead of being a house divided against itself, Williamson County, it seems, is united against a common foe, the gangsters.

States Attorney Arlie Boswell, who Tuesday convicted a fifth Birger gangster of robbery, will ask the jury for the death penalty in the killing of Jones.

City Judge Cook of Herrin, who was one of the defense lawyers in the mine riot trials and has been appointed by the Court to defend Gowen, a 19-year-old boy, who deserted the farm to seek excitement at the Birger rendezvous, the Hutzles, placed in temporary charge of the Hutz while the chief was killed there by Millich.

Eight jurors had been selected at 11:15 a.m. today when Judge Cook objected to further selection on the ground that the Court had excused two men from the first venire of 25 without giving counsel an opportunity to examine them. Court then recessed and the two veniremen were notified to report later in the day. Besides the 23 from the first venire, the lawyers have exhausted most of the second, which contained 25 men.

"You know there has been gang warfare in the county, murders and other law violations," Attorney Cook tells a prospective juror. "Would that influence your verdict?"

"Did you ever see the picture published in the Post-Dispatch of the armed crowd before the Birger butt?" he asks again.

"I presume you've heard all about the Birger gang and other gangs in this country," says Boswell. "Do you know Charlie Birger?" The invariable answer is "No," for Birger made his home in Saline, a neighboring county, but his hut and other interests were in Williamson County. The jurors, however, have heard of

"You're not afraid of him," said Boswell pointedly. The veterans answer "No" in a tone that rings in the still sultry court room and causes the swart, but set-headed Millich to gaze more closely at the jury box through piercing, beady eyes and the pale, boyish Gowen to look pale.

Cook tells how Gowen was left an orphan at the age of 4.

"Gowen," he relates, "had done some work for Birger, such as carrying home brew from the cabin in the barbecue stand and helping to make home brew. At all times he was the handy man about the place doing the drudgery."

The trial probably will occupy the rest of the week. Among the dozen witnesses summoned by the State will be Clarence Rose, involved with Millich and Gowen for the slaying of Jones. The State dismissed the charge against him but has him as a witness against the other two.
